APPEALED TO RULERS.

Labori Sent Telegrams to William and Humbert.

WANTS EX-ATTACHES TO TESTIFY.

The French Government Also to Ask That Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi Be Allowed to Appear as Witnesses. Ex-Minister Testified For Dreyfus.

RENNES, France, Sept. 5 .- M. Labori telegraphed personal appeals to Emperor William and King Humbert to grant permission to Colonel Schwartzkoppen and Colonel Panizzardi, Genman and Italian military attaches in Paris in 1894, to come to Rennes to testify in the trial of Captain Dreyfus.

The appeals were couched in eloquent terms, invoking the assistance of their majesties in the name of justice and humanity. They are quite supplementary to the formal application that will be made by the government commissary, Major Carriere.

Both Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi must consult their respective sovereigns before starting, but the counsel for Dreyfus fully expect them to arrive here, if they come at all, in time to give their testimony on Thursday, in which case the trial would probably conclude this week and the verdict be delivered on Friday or Saturday.

RENNES, France, Sept. 6.—The judges in the Dreyfus courtmartial deliberated over the application of M. Labori for an order upon the government commissary to request the French government to invite foreign governments to supply documents enumerated in the bordereau. It was unanimously decided to reject the application of M. Labori on the ground that the court did not consider itself competent to pronounce a judgment which might entail diplomatic action by the government.

It was also decided unanimously to examine M. de Cernuschi, the Austro-Hungarian refugee, today behind closed in view of the rejection by the courtmartial of M. Labori's motion, the defense intend to issue subpoenas to Colonels Schwartzkoppon and Panizzardi. The subpoenas will be transmitted by the courtmartial, through the minister of war, the minister of justice and the minister of foreign affairs, successvely, and thence through the French ambassadors at Berlin and Rome.

Colonels Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi can elect whether they shall appear before the courtmartial or make depositions before magistrates in their respective countries, in which latter case the depositions will be transmitted as evidence to the courtmartial through diplomatic channels. This probably means at least weeks of delay.

The examination of the secret espionage dossier mentioned by Captain Cuignet during Monday's sitting of the courtmartial occupied the greater part of the secret session of the court.

The first witness who was called to the bar was the reporter, Bassett, whom The Matin sent to London to interview Major Count Ferdinand Walzin Esterhazy.. The witness deposed that Esterhazy confessed to him that he wrote the bordereau under orders from Colonel Sandherr, who was then chief of the Secret intelligence bureau. The order, Esterhazy said, was to catch the traitor at the headquarters of the general staff whom Esterhazy afterward said was Captain Dreyfus.

Major Carriere here burst out with an extraordinary protest against Major Sandherr.

and memory of Colonel Sandherr, Dreyfus. against the insinuations introduced against him."

M. Labori, however, ignored this protest, which he styled "a ridiculous prebention."

M. Labori then called upon General Roget to testify regarding letters received from Major Esterhazy since the opening of this trial. letter from Major Esterhazy, which he atic scene of violent recriminations and He replied that he only opened one

Roget added that he had declined to receive other letters. M. Labori then asked Colonel Jouanst to have the letters read.

Colonel Jouanst at first declined, but M. Labori insisted so firmly that Colonel Jouanst, after wrangling a while, gave way and consented that the letter should be read later.

General Roget then read the one Esterhazy letter which he admitted having opened. In this letter Major Esterhazy said he could not prove the existence of the alleged syndicate organized in the interest of Dreyfus, and complained that the general staff had refused to give him a fair hearing.

M. Labori then put a series of questions intended to bring out the fact that the general staff had made use of Major Esterhazy even after he was known to be unreliable.

General Roget said he had not considered Major Esterhazy's avowals to be of any value.

M. Labori sought to question General Roget more closely on his statement that none of the generals of the general staff had any relations with Major Esterhazy, but Colonel Jouanst declined to allow further discussion. This led to another scene between the president of the courtmartial and counsel for the de-

Roget, who came here more as public prosecutor than as a witness, refused to reply to probing questions.

A little later M. Labori pushed the question on General Billot on what is known as the liberating document, which, it is alleged, freed Esterhazy.

General Zurlinden spoke a few words respecting the general staff's belief in Major Esterhazy.

General Roget, in answer to a remark by M. Demange, said he thought Ester-lary innocent of treason. General Roget then delivered a short discourse in reply to the statement of M de Fond Lamotte on Saturday that the phrase in the bordereau, "I am going to the manoeuvers," showed that Dreyfus could not be the author of the bordereau. General Roget maintained that M. Lamotte was wrong.

Captain Dreyfus arose and in a clear voice emphatically insisted that the circular of May 17, 1894, announcing that the probationers would not go to the manoeuvers was written in the clearest language, which the court would see if it were read. He reiterated that he had never asked to go to the manoeuvers, for he was absolutely convinced that such a request would not be granted. M. Deffes, a reporter for The Temps, testified that he saw Esterhazy in London, and that the latter confessed that he was the author of the bordereau. The witness added that he raised the question of the letters of Madame Boulanc and brought away the impression

During the session of the courtmartial a strong plea for Dreyfus and evidence in his behalf was given by Senator Trarieux, ex-minister of jus-

When Dreyfus was convicted, the witness said, he was convinced, like everybody else, of the prisoner's guilt, but violent diatribes on the fact that Dreyfus was a Jew awakened his suspicions. He, therefore, consulted M. Hanotaux (late prime minister of France), and the latter informed the witness of the existence of the "Cette Canaille de D-" document, though M. Hanotaux failed to inform him that it had been imparted to the judges of the first courtmartial unknown to the prisoner. This fact the witness learned later.

Trarieux denounced the secret communication of the document as a monstrous illegality and a violation of the most sacred rights of the defense. The witness described as impossible the hypothesis advanced by M. Teyssonieres to convince the witness that Dreyfus was guilty. The witness' doubts were confirmed when he heard that M. Scheurer-Kestner had secured proofs of the innocence of Dreyfus and the guilt of another.

M. Trarieux said he could not agree to a single conclusion reached by General Gonse in his correspondence with Lieutenant Colonel Picquart, and said the latter's cemoval from the secret intelligence department was the result of underhand plotting by some one opposed to revision. The witness enumerated in support of this statement various forged documents which, he asserted, had emanated from the secret intelligence department. He said he assumed the chiefs were decieved.

M. Trarieux pointed out that if any proof wnatsoever of the guilt of Dreyfus existed in 1896 General Gonse would have shown Lieutenant Colonel Picquart an order to stop the investigation.

After an interview with M. Scheurer-Kestner. the witness said, he became convinced of the guilt of Esterhazy.

M. Trarieux mentioned an interview he had with a foreign ambassador, who declared that Dreyfus never had relations with him nor with any military attache or officer of the army of his country. M. Trarieux asserted the importance of this statement of the ambassador, who energetically reaffirmed the Esterhazy's insinuation against Colonel | absolute innocence of Dreyfus. The ambassador added that he had investi-"I protest," he cried, "in the name gated and found nothing to implicate

Further, the ambassador said, he had seen in the hands of Colonel Panizzardi a letter from Colonel Schwartzkoppen proving the guilt of Esterhazy, who, his excellency added, generally communicated information of minor value. Moreover, at the time of M. Scheurer-Kestner's revelations Major Esterhazy called upon Colonel Schwartzkoppen, and it was then that a dramforwarded to Colonel Jouanst. General threats occurred. The ambassador also showed the witness that the "Cette Canaille de D-'' phrase did not apply to Dreyfus. M. Trarieux explained that the ambassador had accorded him pormission to communicate it to the judicial authorities. In a subsequent interview which the witness had with the same ambassador the latter had informed him that the Henry forgery, which had just been discovered, had been long known to his government and that the French government had been aware of it for a year.

At one point he declared in part: "It may be said that I should not adduce here the evidence of a foreigner. That is M. Cavignac's opinion, and I do not oppose it, but it has no foundation either in fact or in law. The testimony of foreigners is not disallowed by law. He said Colonel Panizzardi was cited to appear in a case of swindling at Versailles, and a foreign witness had been examined the day before. Even the supreme head of the army, the gallant soldier De Galliffet, had not shrunk from adducing before the court of cassation the testimony of General Talbot.

With regard to General Roget and Captain Cuignet, the witness declared Paniwardi and informed his ambassa- diana, 96 cents.

THE BLOCKADE OF LUZON.

Way to Stut Off Rebels' Sources of Supplies and Ammunition Causing Considerable Concern.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.-The matter of making an effective blockade in the Philippines, and especially around the island of Luzon, so as to prevent the insurgents from obtaining ammunition and supplies, is one that is giving the administration considerable concern. It has not been dedmed feasible to proclaim a blockade, as it would indicate a state of war and possibly open a way to the recognition of the incurgents.

Whether or not it is feasible to attack, subdue and garrison all the ports of Luzon which might serve as ports of supply for the Filipinos has not yet been determined.

The president has been advised that the navy should be utilized.

At every port a naval vessel could be stationed, and under the military law of the island every incoming vessel could be made to exhibit its manifest. One trouble about carrying out this plan is the fact that there is not a sufficient number of light draught vessels to go into all the places where the Filipinos can receive their supplies.

Dates Set For Troops to Depart.

Washington, Sept. 6 .- Dates have been set for the departure of three regiments of volnnteers for the Philippines. One-half of the Thirty-fourth, Colonel Kennon, will sail on Sept. 8, on the Columbia, the remainder of the regiment on Sept. 15, on the Belgian King. The Thirty-first, Colonel Pettit, will sail on the 15th on the Sherman, and the Twenty-seventh, Colonel Bell, will sail on the 18th on the Grant.

CHICAGO TO GET ENCAMPMENT.

Salt Lake City Also After It-President McKinley Attended Big Meeting-Also Visited Sampson's Fleet-Enthusiasm During the Great Parade.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—The actual business of the G. A. R. encampment began today at the Grand Opera House.

The fight for commander-in-chief continues, and each candidate still feels sure that he will land a winner. Colonel Albert D. Shaw of Watertown, N. Y., seems to lead, with Comrade Leo Rassieur of St. Louis a good second. There was not much talk about the office of senior vice commander-inchief, the canvass for that office being rather quiet and it is not known who will get the place. M. Minton of Kentucky will probably be named for junior vice commander, while William H. Baker of Massachusetts seems to have the call for surgeon general-in-chief.

The contest among the cities for the holding of next year's encampment has narrowed down to Chicago and Salt Lake City. It is practically conceded that Chicago will be the winner.

The committee on pensions of the national encampment met Tuesday and completed the report, around which the debate of the sessions is likely to center. It is said that, while the committee will suggest certain changes in the laws that now seem to be equivocal, and will cite instances of hardships that have come as a result of the interpretation of the law, it will not join in the denunciation of the pension commissioner, H. Clay Evans.

During the parade Tuesday, from the fronts of the buildings to the curb the people were packed in a solid mass and even breathing was difficult. As a result of the crush about 400 men, women and children were overcome and taken from the crowd to various hos-

With President McKinley and Mayor Ashbridge there were in the reviewing stand: Rear Admiral Melville, Rear Admiral Sampson, Secretary Root, Secretary Wilson, President Scherman of the Philippines commission and others.

The parade was six hours and ten minutes in passing the reviewing stand. After a portion of the department of Pennsylvania had passed, these veterans bringing up the rear, the president left to visit Admiral Sampson's fleet, Governor Stone reviewing the remainder of the procession. When the Ohio posts appeared the aged paraders became wild with enthusiasm. One veteran broke ranks and, standing before his comrades, shouted: "Three cheers for the biggest man on earth-Major William McKinley of Ohio.' This invitation for cheers was followed by a mighty roar, which was echoed and re-echoed among the spectators for blocks.

As the various posts passed in review the president stood smiling and bowing and, on numerous occasions, waved his hand to the more enthusiastic of the marchers.

After leaving the reviewing stand the president was entertained at luncheon in the rooms of the department of pub-

The visit of the president to the squadron proved to be the greatest marine spectacle ever seen nere. It was the intention to have Mr. McKinley visit only the New York, but he grew so enthusiastic over the great fighters that he suddenly made up his mind to inspect all of them. Accordingly he visited the flagship New York, cruiser Brooklyn and the battleships Indiana, Massachusetts and Texas. It was his intention to also visit the cruiser Detroit, but much to his regret he was unable to do so on account of lack of time. There was almost a continuous roar of guns during the one and three-quarter hours that it took to inspect the vessels. In all, 462 guns were fired by the squadron in president's salutes. On the New York and Indiana the men acted as they do in battle. The president was much interested. The return of the president to the shore was an inspiring one. The Texas was moored furthest up the river, and the presidential party had to pass each of the great vessels on its return to crowded to their utmost capacity and a great noise was being made. As the barge neared the flagship the signal was given to salnte, and six big ships man and officer on the ships stood at tention and the bands added to the din by playing "Hail to the Chief." The barge was stopped while the salute was being fired, and after it had ceased the 12 brawny sailors pulled for the shore.

A noticeable feature of the visit to the fleet was the president's cordial greeting of the men on each ship. He turrn. never once forgot the "boys," bowed to them upon boarding and leaving the ships.

Enthusiasm was rampant last night. Wherever President McKinley appeared he received a tremendous ovation, particularly at the Academy of Music, where the Grand Army was officially welcomed to the city and state by Mayor Ashbridge and Governor Stone.

General Sickies was aireauy seared when the president arrived, accompanied by Secretaries Root and Wilson. When President McKinley observed the veteran he walked toward him and General Sickles arose from his seat. They shook hands cordially while the audience, numbering about 3,000, made the house ring with their plandits.

A few minutes later the presidential party, with Admiral Sampson and his staff, left the Academy of Music and proceeded to Odd Fellows' hall, where President McKinley was the guest of honor at a banquet tendered by George G. Meade post, the Lafayette post of New York and the Kingsley post of

SERIOUSLY AFFECTS THE NAVY.

Advance and Shortage In Steel May Delay Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The navy is beginning to feel seriously the effect of the heavy advance in the steel market. There are 12 of the torpedoboats and destroyers under construction in various vards, and all are affected by the "steel famine" and the heavy prices, so that it is expected that extensions will be asked on all of these craft, extensions already being asked on two.

The prospect is that the bids on the six protected cruisers, to be opened on Nov. 1, will be much higher than was expected when the appropriation for them was made.

The engineering bureau has also felt the advance, not only in increased prices, but in an inability to get material and buildings inside the limit fixed by congress.

The bureau of yards and docks is unable to proceed with a number of building projects at navyyards and stations owing to the advance in steel. Civil Engineer Cunningham of the bureau of yards and docks says structural steel has advanced 100 per cent

Whether or not it is feasible to attack, subdue and garrison all the ports of Luzon which might serve as ports of supply for the Filipinos has not yet been determined.

The president has been advised that the navy should be utilized.

At every port a naval vessel could be stationed, and under the military law of the island every incoming vessel could be made to exhibit its manifest. One trouble about carrying out this plan is the fact that there is not a sufficient number of light draught vessels to go into all the places where the Filipinos can receive their supplies.

CHICAGO TO GET ENCAMPMENT.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—The actual business of the G. A. R. encampment began today at the Grand Opera House.

The fight for commander-in-chief continues, and each candidate still feels sure that he will land a winner. Colonel Albert D. Shaw of Watertown, N. Y., seems to lead, with Comrade Leo Rassieur of St. Louis a good second. There was not much talk about the office of senior vice commander-inchief, the canvass for that office being rather quiet and it is not known who will get the place. M. Minton of Kentucky will probably be named for junior vice commander, while William H. Baker of Massachusetts seems to have the call for surgeon general-in-chief.

The contest among the cities for the holding of next year's encampment has narrowed down to Chicago and Salt Lake City. It is practically conceded that Chicago will be the winner.

The committee on pensions of the national encampment met Tuesday and completed the report, around which the debate of the sessions is likely to center. It is said that, while the committee will suggest certain changes in the laws that now seem to be equivocal, and will cite instances of hardships that have come as a result of the interpretation of the law, it will not join in the denunciation of the pension commissioner, H. Clay Evans.

During the parade Tuesday, from the fronts of the buildings to the curb the people were packed in a solid mass and even breathing was difficult. As a result of the crush about 400 men, women and children were overcome and taken from the crowd to various hos-

With President McKinley and Mayor Ashbridge there were in the reviewing stand: Rear Admiral Melville, Rear Admiral Sampson, Secretary Root, Secretary Wilson, President Scherman of the Philippines commission and others.

The parade was six hours and ten minutes in passing the reviewing stand. After a portion of the department of Pennsylvania had passed, these veterans bringing up the rear, the president left to visit Admiral Sampson's fleet, Governor Stone reviewing the remainder of the procession. When the Ohio posts appeared the aged paraders became wild with enthusiasm. One veteran broke ranks and, standing before his comrades, shouted: "Three cheers for the biggest man on earth-Major William McKinley of Ohio.' This invitation for cheers was followed by a mighty roar, which was echoed and re-echoed among the spectators for blocks.

As the various posts passed in review the president stood smiling and bowing and, on numerous occasions, waved his hand to the more enthusiastic of the marchers.

After leaving the reviewing stand the president was entertained at luncheon in the rooms of the department of public works. The visit of the president to the squadspectacle ever seen nere. It was the intention to have Mr. McKinley visit only the New York, but he grew so enthusiastic over the great fighters that he suddenly made up his mind to inspect all of them. Accordingly he visited the flagship New York, cruiser Brooklyn and the battleships Indiana, Massachusetts and Texas. It was his intention to also visit the cruiser Detroit, but much to his regret he was unable to do so on account of lack of time. There was almost a continuous roar of guns during the one and three-quarter hours that it took to inspect the vessels. In all, 462 guns were fired by the squadron in president's salutes. On the New York and Indiana the men acted as they do in battle. The president was much interested. The return of the president to the shore was an inspiring one. The Texas was moored furthest up the river, and the presidential party had to pass each of the great vessels on its return to shore. The river was alive with craft crowded to their utmost capacity and a great noise was being made. As the barge neared the flagship the signal was given to sainte, and six big ships belched forth a terrific salute. Every man and officer on the ships stood at tention and the bands added to the din by playing "Hail to the Chief." The barge was stopped while the salute was being fired, and after it had ceased the 12 brawny sailors pulled for the shore. A noticeable feature of the visit to the fleet was the president's cordial greeting of the men on each ship. He turrn.

never once forgot the "boys," and bowed to them upon boarding and leaving the ships.

Enthusiasm was rampant last night. Wherever President McKinley appeared he received a tremendous ovation, particularly at the Academy of Music, where the Grand Army was officially welcomed to the city and state by Mayor Ashbridge and Governor Stone.

General Sickles was already seafed when the president arrived, accompanied by Secretaries Root and Wilson. When President McKinley observed the veteran he walked toward him and General Sickles arose from his seat. They shook hands cordially while the audience, numbering about 3,000, made the house ring with their plandits.

A few minutes later the presidential party, with Admiral Sampson and his staff, left the Academy of Music and proceeded to Odd Fellows' hall, where President McKinley was the guest of honor at a banquet tendered by George G. Meade post, the Lafayette post of New York and the Kingsley post of Boston.

The presidential party later left for Washington.

SERIOUSLY AFFECTS THE NAVY.

Advance and Shortage In Steel May Delay Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 .- The navy is beginning to feel seriously the effect of the heavy advance in the steel market. There are 12 of the torpedoboats and destroyers under construction in various yards, and all are affected by the "steel famine" and the heavy prices, so that it is expected that extensions will be asked on all of these craft, extensions already being asked on two. The prospect is that the bids on the six protected cruisers, to be opened on Nov. 1, will be much higher than was expected when the appropriation for them was made.

The engineering bureau has also felt the advance, not only in increased prices, but in an inability to get material and buildings inside the limit fixed by congress.

The bureau of yards and docks is unable to proceed with a number of building projects at navyyards and stations owing to the advance in steel.

Civil Engineer Cunningham of the bureau of yards and docks says structural steel has advanced 100 per cent and, in some cases, 300 per cent.

APPEALED TO RULERS.

Labori Sent Telegrams to William and Humbert.

WANTS EX-ATTACHES TO TESTIFY.

The French Government Also to Ask That Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi Be Allowed to Appear as Witnesses. Ex-Minister Testified For Dreyfus.

RENNES, France, Sept. 5.-M. Labori telegraphed personal appeals to Emperor William and King Humbert to grant permission to Colonel Schwartzkoppen and Colonel Panizzardi, Genman and Italian military attaches in Paris in 1894, to come to Rennes to testify in the trial of Captain Dreyfus.

The appeals were couched in eloquent terms, invoking the assistance of their majesties in the name of justice and humanity. They are quite supplementary to the formal application that will be made by the government commissary, Major Carriere.

Both Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi must consult their respective sovereigns before starting, but the counsel for Dreyfus fully expect them to arrive here, if they come at all, in time to give their testimony on Thursday, in which case the trial would probably conclude this week and the verdict be delivered on Friday or Saturday.

Rennes, France, Sept. 6.—The judges in the Dreyfus courtmartial deliberated over the application of M. Labori for an order upon the government commissary to request the French government to invite foreign governments to supply documents enumerated in the bordereau. It was unanimously decided to reject the application of M. Labori on the ground that the court did not consider itself competent to pronounce a judgment which might entail diplomatic action by the government.

It was also decided unanimously to examine M. de Cernuschi, the Austro-Hungarian refugee, today behind closed in view of the rejection by the courtmartial of M. Labori's motion, the defense intend to issue subpoenas to Colonels Schwartzkoppon and Panizzardi. The subpoenas will be transmitted by the courtmartial, through the minister of war, the minister of justice and the minister of foreign affairs, successvely, and thence through the French ambassadors at Berlin and Rome.

Colonels Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi can elect whether they shall appear before the courtmartial or make depositions before magistrates in their respective countries, in which latter case the depositions will be transmitted as evidence to the courtmartial through diplomatic channels. This probably means at least weeks of delay.

The examination of the secret espionage dossier mentioned by Captain Cuignet during Monday's sitting of the courtmartial occupied the greater part of the secret session of the court.

The first witness who was called to the bar was the reporter, Bassett, whom The Matin sent to London to interview Major Count Ferdinand Walzin Esterhazy.. The witness deposed that Esterhazy confessed to him that he wrote the bordereau under orders from Colonel Sandherr, who was then chief of the secret intelligence bureau. The order. Esterhazy said, was to catch the traitor at the headquarters of the general staff whom Esterhazy afterward said was Captain Dreyfus.

Major Carriere here burst out with an extraordinary protest against Major Esterhazy's insinuation against Colonel Sandherr.

"I protest," he cried, "in the name and memory of Colonel Sandherr, against the insinuations introduced against him.'

M. Labori, however, ignored this protest, which he styled "a ridiculous prebention.'

M. Labori then called upon General Roget to testify regarding letters received from Major Esterhazy since the opening of this trial.

He replied that he only opened one letter from Major Esterhazy, which he forwarded to Colonel Jouanst. General Roget added that he had declined to receive other letters.

M. Labori then asked Colonel Jouaust to have the letters read.

Colonel Jouanst at first declined, but M. Labori insisted so firmly that Colonel Jouanst, after wrangling a while, gave way and consented that the letter should be read later.

General Roget then read the one Esterhazy letter which he admitted having opened. In this letter Major Esterhazy said he could not prove the existence of the alleged syndicate organized in the interest of Dreyfus, and complained that the general staff had refused to give him a fair hearing.

M. Labori then put a series of questions intended to bring out the fact that the general staff had made use of Major Esterhazy even after he was known to be unreliable. General Roget said he had not considered Major Esterhazy's avowals to be of any value. M. Labori sought to question General Roget more closely on his statement that none of the generals of the general staff had any relations with Major Esterhazy, but Colonel Jouanst declined to allow further discussion. This led to another scene between the president of the courtmartial and counsel for the deRoget, who came here more as public prosecutor than as a witness, refused to reply to probing questions.

A little later M. Labori pushed the question on General Billot on what is known as the liberating document, which, it is alleged, freed Esterhazy.

General Zurlinden spoke a few words respecting the general staff's belief in Major Esterhazy.

General Roget, in answer to a remark by M. Demange, said he thought Estera y innocent of treason.

General Roget then delivered a short discourse in reply to the statement of M de Fond Lamotte on Saturday that the phrase in the bordereau, "I am going to the manoeuvers," showed that Dreyfus could not be the author of the bordereau. General Roget maintained that M. Lamotte was wrong.

Captain Dreyfus arose and in a clear voice emphatically insisted that the circular of May 17, 1894, announcing that the probationers would not go to the manoeuvers was written in the clearest language, which the court would see if it were read. He reiterated that he had never asked to go to the manoeuvers, for he was absolutely convinced that such a request would not be granted.

M. Deffes, a reporter for The Temps, testified that he saw Esterhazy in London, and that the latter confessed that he was the author of the bordereau. The witness added that he raised the question of the letters of Madame Boulanc and brought away the impression that Esterhazy wrote the "Uhlan" let-

During the session of the court-martial a strong plea for Dreyfus and evidence in his behalf was given by Senator Trarieux, ex-minister of jus-

When Dreyfus was convicted, the witness said, he was convinced, like everybody else, of the prisoner's guilt, but violent diatribes on the fact that Dreyfus was a Jew awakened his suspicions. He, therefore, consulted M. Hanotaux (late prime minister of France), and the latter informed the witness of the existence of the "Cette Canaille de D—" document, though M. Hanotaux failed to inform him that it had been imparted to the judges of the first courtmartial unknown to the prisoner. This fact the witness learned

Trarieux denounced the secret communication of the document as a monstrous illegality and a violation of the most sacred rights of the defense. The witness described as impossible the hypothesis advanced by M. Teyssonieres to convince the witness that Dreyfus was guilty. The witness' doubts were confirmed when he heard that M. Scheurer-Kestner had secured proofs of the innocence of Dreyfus and the guilt

M. Trarieux said he could not agree eral Gonse in his correspondence with Lieutenant Colonel Picquart, and said the latter's cemoval from the secret intelligence department was the result of underhand plotting by some one opposed to revision. The witness enumerated in support of this statement various forged documents which, he asserted, had emanated from the secret intelligence department. He said he assumed the chiefs were decieved.

M. Trarieux pointed out that if any proof wnatsoever of the guilt of Dreyfus existed in 1896 General Gonse would have shown Lieutenant Colonel Picquart an order to stop the investigation.

After an interview with M. Scheurer-Kestner. the witness said, he became convinced of the guilt of Esterhazy.

M. Trarieux mentioned an interview he had with a foreign ambassador, who declared that Dreyfus never had relations with him nor with any military attache or officer of the army of his country. M. Trarieux asserted the importance of this statement of the ambassador, who energetically reaffirmed the absolute innocence of Dreyfus. The ambassador added that he had investigated and found nothing to implicate Dreyfus.

Further, the ambassador said, he had seen in the hands of Colonel Panizzardi a letter from Colonel Schwartzkoppen proving the guilt of Esterhazy, who, his excellency added, generally communicated information of minor value. Moreover, at the time of M. Scheurer-Kestner's revelations Major Esterhazy called upon Colonel Schwartzkoppen, and it was then that a dramatic scene of violent recriminations and threats occurred. The ambassador also showed the witness that the "Cette Canaille de D-'' phrase did not apply to

Dreyfus. M. Trarieux explained that the ambassador had accorded him pormission to communicate it to the judicial authorities. In a subsequent interview which the witness had with the same ambassador the latter had informed him that the Henry forgery, which had just been discovered, had been long known to his government and that the French ley's absence from this very pleasant government had been aware of it for a year. At one point he declared in part: "It may be said that I should not adduce here the evidence of a foreigner. That is M. Cavignac's opinion, and I do not oppose it, but it has no foundation either in fact or in law. The testimony of foreigners is not disallowed by law. He said Colonel Panizzardi was cited to appear in a case of swindling at Versailles, and a foreign witness had been examined the day before. Even the supreme head of the army, the gallant soldier De Galliffet, had not shrunk from adducing before the court of cassation the testimony of General Talbot.

With regard to General Roget and Captain Cuignet, the witness declared that their allegations that Colonel North Lima, $1.01; South Lima and In-Paniwarm and informed his ambassa- diana. 96 cents.

fense, M. Labori declaring that General dor that Colonel Schwartzkoppen nau had relations with Dreyfus were absolutely unfounded. On the contrary, the witness asserted. Colonel Panizzardi expressly stated that Dreyfus had no relations with any foreign attache.

THE BLOCKADE OF LUZON.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The matter of making an effective blockade in the Philippines, and especially around the island of Luzon, so as to prevent the insurgents from obtaining ammunition and supplies, is one that is giving the administration considerable concern. It has not been dedmed feasible to proclaim a blockade, as it would indicate a state of war and possibly open a way to the recognition of the incurgents.

MR. BRYAN'S REASONING

Jeffersonianism.

COMMERCIAL VS. LEGAL RATIO.

An Examination Into the Efforts the Free Silver Leader Makes to Harmonize Thomas Jefferson's Monetary Principles With Bryan's Theories-Republicans and Jefferson Identical.

The professional candidate of the Democratic party for the presidency, William Jennings Bryan, who is said to have made a fortune out of his lecturing during the past three years, never loses an opportunity to hitch his theories to the great name of Jefferson.

His political vagaries comport well with his own personality, but his persistent efforts to make them fit the stalwart father of Democracy are extremely ludicrous. Tom Thumb's garments would have as easily fit Her-

In an article entitled "Jeffersonian Principles," in the June number of the North American Review, he begins by saying "The admirers of Thomas Jefferson have reason to be gratified at the growing interest in the principles enunciated by him." His closing sentence is: "The renaissance of Jeffersonian principles is at hand."

In trying to make the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the obsolete ratio of 16 to 1 fit with Thomas Jefferson's financial policy, he says: "Jefferson is also quoted in support of the commercial ratio as against the legal ratio." He then proceeds to show why Jefferson advocated "the commercial ratio as against the legal ratio," saying: "But those who thus quote him ignore the important fact that when he recommended the adoption of the commercial ratio, it was at a time when all the gold and silver produced from the mines could find access to the government mints, and when the commercial ratio was the resultant of the different coinage ratios acting on the metals. For the United States to have established a ratio appreciably different from those then existing, would have added a new and disturbing factor."

Eliminate all of Bryan from this quotation and leave only Jefferson's principle, and we find that Thomas Jefferson supported "a commercial ration as against a legal ratio."

William J. Bryan is in favor of the very reverse, i. e., a legal ratio as against the commercial ratio. In this he is certainly not Jeffersonian.

Thomas Jefferson's own words uttered in 1782 are: "THE PROPOR-TION BETWEEN THE VALUES OF GOLD AND SILVER IS A MERCAN-TILE PROBLEM ALTOGETHER. The legal proportion in Spain is 16 for 1; in England 15½ for 1; in France 15 for 1. The Spaniards and English are found in experience to retain an overproportion of gold coins, and to lose their silver. The French have a greater proportion of silver. The difference at market has been on the decrease. The financier states it at present at 141/2 for one. JUST PRINCIPLES WILL LEAD US TO DISREGARD LEGAL PROPORTIONS ALTOGETHER; TO INQUIRE INTO THE MARKET PRICE OF GOLD IN THE SEVERAL COUNTRIES WITH WHICH WE SHALL PRINCIPALLY BE CON-NECTED IN COMMERCE, AND TO TAKE AN AVERAGE FROM THEM." If Thomas Jefferson's principles were like Bryan's, he would have said: 'The proportion between the values of gold and silver is a LEGAL problem. Don't be influenced by the monetary principles of England, Spain, France or any other European power, because the United States is great enough to establish a ratio between gold and silver, and force every other country in the world to bow the knee to its financial policy. Just principles will lead us to disregard MERCANTILE proportions altogether. We need not inquire into the market price of gold in the several countries with which we shall principally be connected in com- man makers of linoleum. If used at merce, and take an average from them. This would be un-American."

By a Bryanite juggling of words white is made black, diametrically opposing principles are harmonized, and the great Thomas Jefferson is presented to the American people dressed in the swaddling clothes of William Jennings Bryan.

Thomas Jefferson's principle was to discover by investigations in Europe That East Liverpool is a McKinley the value of GOLD in the markets, with its value as compared with gold. That is, he made the commercial value of gold the standard by which to fix the legal ratio.

But Bryan's principle is the very reverse of his. In the article referred to above he says: "The United States can, by the restoration of free and unlimited coinage, lift the commercial ratio up to the legal ratio.'

Jefferson acknowledged that values were regulated by the supply and demand in the markets; Bryan's delusion consists in believing that to arbi-Futile Efforts to Establish His trarily announce a legal value will regulate a commercial value. Thus Jefferson and Bryan are at opposite poles in finance. Jefferson's idea was that the use of metal money was contingent on the values placed on it by the countries with whom the United States transacts business. Bryan says that the United States does not have to consider what other nations think about our financial policy. If they don't like our money they need not do business with us.

But so peculiar is the working of Mr. Bryan's mind that he can not see how antagonistic to his theory his own acknowledgment is when he says in regard to the principle adopted by Jefferson in investigating the European commercial ratio between silver and gold and recommending a system of coinage accordingly: "For the United States to have established a ratio appreciably different from those that existed would have added a new and disturbing element."

Now this is just what the Republican party claims: TO ESTABLISH A RA-TIO, not merely appreciably, but radically DIFFERENT FROM THE COMMERCIAL RATIO WOULD ADD NEW AND DISTURBING ELE-MENTS.

This is what would be the case if we arbitrarily authorized the obsolete ration of 16 to 1 in the face of the fact that the commercial ratio is nearer 40

The Republican fundamental monetary principles are in accord with Jefferson's well known views.

Thomas Jefferson believed and the Republican party believes that "the proportion between the values of gold and silver is a mercantile problem altogether;" that just principles will lead us to disregard legal proportions altogether; to inquire into the market price of gold in the several countries with which we shall principally be connected in commerce, and to take an average from them."

If Bryan agreed with Jefferson, he would agree with the Republican party. As it is, he is simply laboring for political purposes in general, and mercantile reasons in particular, to MAKE THE SILVER MINE OWNERS FAB-ULOUSLY RICH BY TRYING TO LIFT THE COMMERCIAL RATIO UP TO THE RATIO OF 16 TO 1.

He is right, however, in saying that there is a renaissance of Jeffersonian principles, but that renaissance is under the banner of the Republican party and with William McKinley, not Bryan, as its chief apostle.

WOOD FLOUR IN DYNAMITE

Its Use In Germany as a Substitute For Infusorial Earth.

The state department at Washington some time ago instructed several consuls to report in regard to the use of wood flour in the manufacture of explosives, says the New York Sun. Consul General Mason writes from Berlin as follows:

"There is no manufacture of dynamite in Berlin, but from the repre sentative of a firm in Saxony it has been ascertained that wood flour has been used in the manufacture of dynamite as a cheap substitute for infusorial earth, which is the standard material for that purpose. The entire German supply of infusorial earth comes from one source at Luneberg, between Hamburg and Hanover, and when that material became scarce and expensive by reason of increased demand experiments were made with wood flour as a substitute. From the best information that can be obtained it is regarded as distinctly inferior to infusorial earth for making explosives and is only used when extreme cheapness of product is desirable or the infusorial earth cannot be obtained. "Wood flour has also been somewhat extensively used in the manufacture of linoleum, a kind of floor cloth made by laying a coating of hardened linseed oil mixed with ground cork on a canvas net or backing, but here again it was found to be hard, inelastic, and for that reason inferior to cork meal, so that its use has been, so far as can be ascertained, abandoned by most Gerall for this purpose, it is done secretly and would be regarded as an adulters.

"The third and by far the most important use of wood flour in Germany is for the manufacture of papyrolite or Sylotite, a kind of artificial flooring. which is extensively produced by several large firms and companies in Germany.'

WANT MORE FIREMEN

Enough Work For One at the East End Station.

MANY HOUSES ARE IN DEMAND

Several Persons Are Ill-People Who Are Coming and Going-Rev. Crowe Attending Presbytery at Malvern-Laying Brick at National Pottery.

Some people residing in East End are of the opinion that after the election next spring, the fire force at the East End station should be increased. There are only two men on duty, and during the day Fireman Finley does street work, while in the evening Fireman Terrance does police duty. "There is enough work for two men in the house all the time," said an East End resident today, "and the addition of one man would be of material assistance to the present force should there be a fire of any consequence.

"With another ward, which gives an addition of two councilmen, the fire department should also be granted another man. Looking after the interests of the city is the firemen's lot, and work enough for another man could soon be provided."

BUILD HOMES.

Where Are the People to Live Who Will Work In New Potteries?

When the two new potteries in this part of the city are in full operation many of the people who work in them will desire to live in East End. Where are the homes for these people? By a trip through the town yesterday after noon there were found but two vacant houses in the entire East End. The fact has become generally known that many persons who will work in the new plants are to come from Trenton and other eastern pottery centers, and the skilled workmen who have families will need homes. Many houses have been built in the suburb during the summer. but these are all occupied. Where the new workmen are to live is a matter that is yet to be determined. There is much room to build, and a person who puts up a house can find no trouble in renting it.

They Are Deserving of Your Warm Commendation.

The average passenger on the street car becomes very impatient at the slighest delay in transportation facilities on the line, and at times becomes very angry at the conductor or motorman when he answers them in crisp, business like tones. This is unjust and should not be indulged in. The street car employees on our own line are, as a rule, very gentlemanly, courteous and obliging, and this in the face of more than ordinary difficult surroundings, as the line between East Liverpool and Wellsville requires constant and unceasing care and watchfulness on the part of the man at the lever. Remember this, readers of the News Review, and make note of the fact that the motorman, under such circumstances, is compelled to cut his conversation short and use the most terse and business-like answers to very, very many questioners. MR. BRYAN'S REASONING

Jeffersonianism.

COMMERCIAL VS. LEGAL RATIO.

An Examination Into the Efforts the Free Silver Leader Makes to Harmonize Thomas Jefferson's Monetary Principles With Bryan's Theories-Republicans and Jefferson Identical.

The professional candidate of the Democratic party for the presidency, William Jennings Bryan, who is said to have made a fortune out of his lecturing during the past three years, never loses an opportunity to hitch his theories to the great name of Jefferson.

His political vagaries comport well with his own personality, but his persistent efforts to make them fit the stalwart father of Democracy are extremely ludicrous. Tom Thumb's garments would have as easily fit Hercules.

In an article entitled "Jeffersonian Principles," in the June number of the North American Review, he begins by saying "The admirers of Thomas Jefferson have reason to be gratified at the growing interest in the principles enunciated by him." His closing sentence is: "The renaissance of Jeffersonian principles is at hand."

In trying to make the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the obsolete ratio of 16 to 1 fit with Thomas Jefferson's financial policy, he says: "Jefferson is also quoted in support of the commercial ratio as against the legal ratio."

He then proceeds to show why Jefferson advocated "the commercial ratio as against the legal ratio," saying: "But those who thus quote him ignore the important fact that when he recommended the adoption of the commercial ratio, it was at a time when all the gold and silver produced from the mines could find access to the government mints, and when the commercial ratio was the resultant of the different coinage ratios acting on the metals. For the United States to have established a ratio appreciably different from those then existing, would have added a new and disturbing fac-

Eliminate all of Bryan from this quotation and leave only Jefferson's principle, and we find that Thomas Jefferson supported "a commercial ration as against a legal ratio."

William J. Bryan is in favor of the very reverse, i. e., a legal ratio as The result of the Republican primar- against the commercial ratio. In this he is certainly not Jeffersonian.

> Thomas Jefferson's own words uttered in 1782 are: "THE PROPOR-GOLD AND SILVER IS A MERCANlegal proportion in Spain is 16 for 1; in England 151/2 for 1; in France 15 for 1. The Spaniards and English are found in experience to retain an overproportion of gold coins, and to lose their silver. The French have a greater proportion of silver. The difference at market has been on the decrease. The financier states it at present at 141/2 for one. JUST PRINCIPLES WILL LEAD US TO DISREGARD LEGAL PROPORTIONS ALTOGETHER: TO INQUIRE INTO THE MARKET PRICE OF GOLD IN THE SEVERAL COUNTRIES WITH WHICH WE SHALL PRINCIPALLY BE CON-NECTED IN COMMERCE, AND TO TAKE AN AVERAGE FROM THEM."

If Thomas Jefferson's principles were like Bryan's, he would have said: gold and silver is a LEGAL problem. and is only used when extreme cheap-Don't be influenced by the monetary ness of product is desirable or the inprinciples of England, Spain, France or any other European power, because the United States is great enough to establish a ratio between gold and silver, and force every other country in the world to bow the knee to its financial policy. Just principles will lead us to disregard MERCANTILE proportions altogether. We need not inquire into the market price of gold in the several countries with which we shall principally be connected in commerce, and take an average from them. This would be un-American.'

By a Bryanite juggling of words white is made black, diametrically opposing principles are harmonized, and the great Thomas Jefferson is presented to the American people dressed in the swaddling clothes of William Jennings Bryan.

Thomas Jefferson's principle was to discover by investigations in Europe the value of GOLD in the markets. and then coin silver in accordance with its value as compared with gold. That is, he made the commercial value of gold the standard by which to fix the legal ratio.

But Bryan's principle is the very reverse of his. In the article referred to above he says: "The United States can, by the restoration of free and unlimited coinage, lift the commercial ratio up to the legal ratio."

Jefferson acknowledged that values were regulated by the supply and demand in the markets; Bryan's delusion consists in believing that to arbi-Futile Efforts to Establish His trarily announce a legal value will regulate a commercial value. Thus Jefferson and Bryan are at opposite poles in finance.

Jefferson's idea was that the use of metal money was contingent on the values placed on it by the countries with whom the United States transacts business. Bryan says that the United States does not have to consider what other nations think about our financial policy. If they don't like our money they need not do business with us.

But so peculiar is the working of Mr. Bryan's mind that he can not see how antagonistic to his theory his own acknowledgment is when he says in regard to the principle adopted by Jefferson in investigating the European commercial ratio between silver and gold and recommending a system of coinage accordingly: "For the United States to have established a ratio appreciably different from those that existed would have added a new and disturbing element."

Now this is just what the Republican party claims: TO ESTABLISH A RA-TIO, not merely appreciably, but radically DIFFERENT FROM THE COMMERCIAL RATIO WOULD ADD NEW AND DISTURBING ELE-MENTS.

This is what would be the case if we arbitrarily authorized the obsolete ration of 16 to 1 in the face of the fact that the commercial ratio is nearer 40 ite Prescription

The Republican fundamental monetary principles are in accord with Jefferson's well known views.

Thomas Jefferson believed and the Republican party believes that "the proportion between the values of gold and silver is a mercantile problem altogether;" that just principles will lead us to disregard legal proportions altogether; to inquire into the market price of gold in the several countries with which we shall principally be connected in commerce, and to take an average from them."

If Bryan agreed with Jefferson, he would agree with the Republican party. As it is, he is simply laboring for political purposes in general, and mercantile reasons in particular, to MAKE THE SILVER MINE OWNERS FAB-ULOUSLY RICH BY TRYING TO LIFT THE COMMERCIAL RATIO UP TO THE RATIO OF 16 TO 1.

He is right, however, in saying that there is a renaissance of Jeffersonian principles, but that renaissance is under the banner of the Republican party and with William McKinley, not Bryan, as its chief apostle.

WOOD FLOUR IN DYNAMITE

Its Use In Germany as a Substitute For Infusorial Earth.

The state department at Washington some time ago instructed several consuls to report in regard to the use of wood flour in the manufacture of explosives, says the New York Sun. Consul General Mason writes from Berlin as follows:

"There is no manufacture of dynamite in Berlin, but from the representative of a firm in Saxony it has been ascertained that wood flour has been used in the manufacture of dynamite as a cheap substitute for infusorial earth, which is the standard material for that purpose. The entire German supply of infusorial earth comes from one source at Luneberg, between Hamburg and Hanover, and when that material became scarce and expensive by reason of increased demand experiments were made with wood flour as a substitute. From the best information that can be obtained it is regarded as distinctly inferior to "The proportion between the values of infusorial earth for making explosives fusorial earth cannot be obtained. "Wood flour has also been somewhat extensively used in the manufacture of linoleum, a kind of floor cloth made by laying a coating of hardened linseed oil mixed with ground cork on a canvas net or backing, but here again it was found to be hard, inelastic, and for that reason inferior to cork meal, so that its use has been, so far as can be ascertained, abandoned by most German makers of linoleum. If used at all for this purpose, it is done secretly and would be regarded as an adulters.

"The third and by far the most important use of wood flour in Germany is for the manufacture of papyrolite or Tylotite, a kind of artificial flooring. which is extensively produced by several large firms and companies in Ger-

There is not a silver Democratin Ohio who believes John R. McLean is a silver man. McLean's nomination is the beginning of the carrying out of a deeply laid plan of the gold Democrats to fight Bryanism inside the party. So far it has been successful.

A GHOUL.

The fellow who maligns our gallant comrades, men who have given their lives for their country, is a ghoul in human form, a coward, poltroon and skulker, unfit for human companionship and deserving of supreme contempt and abhorrence. Webster's unabridged fails to furnish language sufficient to express our loathing for the miserable creature who signs himself "Editor of the Buckeye State."

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

It has been a long time since the Democratic press had so little to say against the personality of the Republican state ticket as this year. The fact is they can say nothing because there is nothing to say. Every man on the ticket is of unimpeachable character, politically and personally. From Geo. K. Nash, to the last name on the ticket, the Republican candidates, are worthy the hearty support of every Republican for their personal merit aside from the fact that they represent the principles of the Republican party and stand for endorsement of the policy and record of a Republican administration.

BAD OFFICIALS.

and by their life and actions are a power for evil, impregnating the community in which they live and move with influences which almost insensibly and unwittingly degrade and debase individuals and lower the tone of public life. If you love your city, and aim for its prosperity and advancement, don't vote for a man who is known to be vile and unprincipled.

A HELL HOLE.

The so called "best" of the saloons in this city are HELL HOLES, miserable traps for the debasement of men's bodies and the destruction of their immortal part, or banishment to a place of unceasing torment. On labor day, one of these so-called "best" saloons sent from its inner circle a young man, reeling and cursing, acting like a maniac, and the next moment sent forth a gray haired man, his locks whitening for the grave, the miserable creature staggering down the street, a laughing stock for foolish women and children. The proprietor of this same devil's den has been known, time and again, to sell intoxicating drinks, on orders from parents or guardians, to little children, girls and boys, and the latter have been seen stop and drink the awful stuff from the mouth of the pitcher in which the vile concoction was contained. Surely the proprietor of this "BEST" hell hole is robbing the cradle and the grave. God's bitter curse will rest against such conduct and such a so-called business, and against a government whose people will Mathias Pickal, of the West continue to permit such nefarious practices. It is high time that lovers of God and humanity shall awake to the full knowledge of the enormity of the crime which is being committed, under the guise of legality, by the American take. Rodney Dickey, a neighbor, was saloon.

WHO SENT IT OUT TO PASTURE

The Other Was a Colt Belonging to Ab. Waggle, and the Horses Were Taken From a Field on His Farm Near Ohio-

Several weeks ago T. B. Murphy sent his horse to the farm of Ab. Waggle. near Ohioville, for a much needed rest, as the animal was considerably run down and was a little lame.

The horse was turned out to pasture with a 15-months-old colt, owned by Mr. Waggle. Yesterday morning when Mr Waggle went to the field he discovered that both horses were missing. A careful search was made of the surrounding country and then the conclusion was reached that the horses had been stolen during the night. The police in all the cities up and down the river were notified to keep a lookout for the thieves, but the horses have not been recovered and there is no trace of them. It is thought the thieves headed this way.

The Murphy horse is a dark bay, with black mane and tail, is a little lame in the left hind foot and hip, and weighs about 1,100. The Waggle colt is about 15 months old and is a bay. A reward will be offered for the apprehension of the thief and the recovery of the horses.

A HELL HOLE.

The so called "best" of the saloons in this city are HELL HOLES, miserable traps for the debasement of men's bodies and the destruction of their immortal part, or banishment to a place of unceasing torment. On labor day, one of these so-called "best" saloons sent from its inner circle a young man, reeling and cursing, acting like a maniac, and the next moment sent forth a gray haired man, his locks whitening for the grave, the miserable creature staggering down the street, a laughing stock for foolish women and children. The proprietor of this same devil's den has been known, time and again, to sell intoxicating drinks, on orders from parents or guardians, to little children, girls and boys, and the latter have been seen stop and drink the awful stuff from the mouth of the pitcher in which the vile concoction was contained. Surely the proprietor of this "BEST" hell hole is robbing the cradle and the grave. God's bitter curse will rest against such conduct and such a so-called business, and against a government whose people will continue to permit such nefarious practices. It is high time that lovers of God and humanity shall awake to the full knowledge of the enormity of the crime which is being committed, under the guise of legality, by the American take. B. Murphy

WHO SENT IT OUT TO PASTURE

The Other Was a Colt Belonging to Ab. Waggle, and the Horses Were Taken From a Field on His Farm Near Ohio-

Several weeks ago T. B. Murphy sent his horse to the farm of Ab. Waggle, near Ohioville, for a much needed rest, as the animal was considerably run down and was a little lame.

The horse was turned out to pasture with a 15-months-old colt, owned by Mr. Waggle. Yesterday morning when Mr Waggle went to the field he discovered that both horses were missing. A careful search was made of the surrounding country and then the conclusion was reached that the horses had been stolen during the night. The police in all the cities up and down the river were notified to keep a lookout for the thieves, but the horses have not been recovered and there is no trace of them. It is thought the thieves headed this way.

The Murphy horse is a dark bay, with black mane and tail, is a little lame in the left hind foot and hip, and weighs about 1,100. The Waggle colt is about 15 months old and is a bay. A reward will be offered for the apprehension of the thief and the recovery of the horses.

CANVASS WILL BE MADE

By the Ladies In an Endeavor to Secure Funds and the Size of the Building Depends on the Amount of Money They Collect.

The members of the hospital association will make a thorough canvass of the city in an endeavor to secure enough funds to erect a hospital.

There was a good turnout of the trustees and members of the association at the meeting held last evening at the home of Mrs. Richard Thomas. The question of building a hospital was discussed in all its phases, and it was the pnanimous opinion that an effort should be made to erect a hospital at once.

The best plan of raising the necessary the payment. eash was then taken up and after several methods had been discussed it was decided to get out subscription papers at once and the ladies will make a careful and thorough canvass of the city. They will take any amount from a dime up, and expect to be able to raise considerable money.

As soon as the canvass is completed arrangements will be made to build the hospital and the size of the building depends upon the funds secured. The building will be put up in such a shape that additions can be put to it without marring its beauty.

The M. P. Conference Opened In the Beaver Falls Church This Morning.

The annual conference of the Pittsburg district of the Methodist Protestant church, convened this morning in the First Methodist Protestant church at Beaver Falls, of which Rev. The work of the stationing of the conference will be watched with interest by members of the local church. The delegate was instructed to ask for the return of Rev. Swift, and the Beaver Falls church is also desirous of securing his services. It is an unwritten law in the conference that the church in which the conference is held shall have the preference of pastors For this reason it is believed that Reverend Swift will not return. The Beaver Falls church pays $300 more salary than the local church. As the delegate was not instructed on a second choice the congregation in this place is in the dark as to who will be their next pastor.

A Mortgaged Bride.

When a Chinaman falls in love, he can be just as sharp and full of guile as the "Melican man." Chow Sam Lung, therefore, when he looked upon little Ah Moy and saw that she was beautiful and young, at once fell down and worshiped, figuratively speaking, and began to investigate as to his chances of making her his wife.

Now, Chow Sam Lung was young himself and a very successful gambler by profession, being the keeper of a gambling house in San Francisco. But the cruel parents of Ah Moy had promised her to old man Low How for his fourth wife and would not retract their promise. Did Chow Sam Lung sit down and bewait his lot? Not at all. He at once made her father's acquaintance, and, beguiling him into his gambling place, proceeded to let him play and win. Then he played and lost. And Chow Sam Lung said: "No matter, you are my friend. I will trust you."

After awhile the old man owed Chow Sam Lung $1,400. Now, old man Low How was to give Ah Moy's father $1,000 on her wedding day, but when New Year's came, and every Chinaman must pay his debts before he can paste his prayer in the josshouse, Ah Moy's dad was short and failed to raise the $1,400. So Chow Sam Lung, who had previously taken a mortgage on the girl, promptly foreclosed it and took her to his home in the very face of old man Low How. And that's what happened in San Francisco Chinatown. And Ah Moy was very muchee happy. San Francisco Call.

HOSPITAL TO BE BUILT F

The Association Took Decisive Action Last Night.

CANVASS WILL BE MADE

By the Ladies In an Endeavor to Secure Funds and the Size of the Building Depends on the Amount of Money They Collect.

The members of the hospital association will make a thorough canvass of the city in an endeavor to secure enough funds to erect a hospital.

There was a good turnout of the trustees and members of the association at the meeting held last evening at the home of Mrs. Richard Thomas. The question of building a hospital was discussed in all its phases, and it was the pnanimous opinion that an effort should be made to erect a hospital at once.

The best plan of raising the necessary cash was then taken up and after several methods had been discussed it was decided to get out subscription papers at once and the ladies will make a careful and thorough canvass of the city. They will take any amount from a dime up, and expect to be able to raise considerable money.

As soon as the canvass is completed arrangements will be made to build the hospital and the size of the building depends upon the funds secured. The building will be put up in such a shape that additions can be put to it without marring its beauty.

A Mortgaged Bride.

When a Chinaman falls in love, he can be just as sharp and full of guile -M. H. Hulings, of Pittsburg, is in as the "Melican man." Chow Sam Lung, therefore, when he looked upon little Ah Moy and saw that she was beautiful and young, at once fell down and worship-d, figuratively speaking, and began to investigate as to his chances of making her his wife.

Now, Chow Sam Lung was young himself and a very successful gambler by profession, being the keeper of a gambling house in San Francisco. But the cruel parents of Ah Moy had promised her to old man Low How for his fourth wife and would not retract their promise. Did Chow Sam Lung sit down and bewait his lot? Not at all. He at once made her father's acquaintance, and, beguiling him into his gambling place, proceeded to let him play and win. Then he played and lost. And Chow Sam Lung said: "No matter, you are my friend. I will trust you."

After awhile the old man owed Chow Sam Lung $1,400. Now, old man Low How was to give Ah Moy's father $1,000 on her wedding day, but when New Year's came, and every Chinaman must pay his debts before he can paste his prayer in the josshouse, Ah Moy's dad was short and failed to raise the $1,400. So Chow Sam Lung, who had previously taken a mortgage on the girl, promptly foreclosed it and took her to his home in the very face of old man Low How. And that's what happened in San Francisco Chinatown. And Ah Moy was very muchee happy. - San Francisco Call.

Paid It In a Hurry.

Some years ago a woman was returning late at night from a social function down at the lower end of the Old Colony railroad. She took to the track as the shortest way home, but in crossing a small trestle above the country road she made a misstep and in falling broke her neck. The next day her husband called on the superintendent, and while not appearing to be very deeply grieved over his loss, yet he felt that he was entitled to some compensation for the untimely ending of his wife.

"She was trespassing," replied the superintendent, "which relieves the company from all responsibility.'

"I know it," replied the man, "but she was a good woman about the house, and I hardly know what I am going to do without her."

"Well, on what basis will you set-

"She fell how many feet?" "About 12 I should say."

"Do you think a dollar a foot is too much?"

The superintendent nearly fell from his seat. Upon recovering he paid the man $12, which he charged to his own account, as he felt that the experience was well worth the price.-Boston Globe.

THE JUSTICE OF THE SYSTEM.

Nearly $16,000,000 to Be Paid Pensioners by the Columbus Agency In September - Benefits Are Farreaching In Business Circles as Well as Among the Veterans.

Just now when the working force at the Columbus pension agency is bending all its energies to the competition of the rolls for the September payment, it is worth while considering what these payments mean. The Ohio Soldier, of Chillicothe, a leading organ of the old soldiers, presents these interesting facts:

Number of soldier pensioners of war for the union who draw pensions at the Columbus

Agency ..... 83.394 Amount paid ......$12,474,158.86 Number of widows..... Amount paid.....$ 2,710,794.68 Number of pensioners of other wars..... Amount paid ..... 409,283.15

Total amount paid....$15,597,215.64 At first glance the number of pensioners may appear large to those who do not take into consideration the army it represents. The war for the union was the greatest contest of which there is any authentic history, is not loyal to Democratic principles and Ohio's enlistments in the war were in round numbers one-third of a million of men.

An examination of these figures show that the average annual payment to pensioners of the war for the union is $149.57, and they fare some better than the pensioners of some other wars, whose average is $119.60. This is as it should be, when the extent of the several wars are considered; and the average, as well as the zations of their party in Ohio. sum total of payments, mark the fact that congress and the people purpose to treat the old soldier generously.

cause the testimony does not sufficient-As to the policy of paying pensions, that would seem to be long since fixed by the practice of all civilized nations. From the organization of the government it has prevailed in this country. In the early days, when the young nation had no money to even pay its pressing debts, lands were given in lieu. We have a striking example of this beneficence here in Ohio where all that now rich and populous section lying between the Scioto and Miami rivers was given to the Virginia soldiers of the revolutionary war. This allotment not proving sufficient, a second and third allotment was made in Indiana and Illinois. East of the Scioto is another tract of 5,000 square miles, known as United States military lands, which was given to other revolutionary soldiers; and to the southeast is another tract known as the Ohio Company's Purchase, which was in a large measure a grant to revolutionary soldiers. The land warrants to the soldiers of 1812 and the Mexican and Indian wars are familiar to our readers.

Referring again to the table, it shows the payment of pensions at the Columbus agency amounts to nearly a million and a third dollars per month. This is a large sum of money, but the good that flows from its quarterly distribution is manifold. First in point of importance is the substantial aid and comfort given in their old age to the soldiers who gave of their own life and strength that the nation might live—that government by the people might not perish from the face of the earth. This money is not hoarded; indeed it has more frequently been anticipated to meet the necessities of life, and goes at once to the grocer, the butcher, the clothier, the merchant.

and to pay rent. In turn these people pass it to the wholesaler and manufacturer, or to settle other indebtedness. Pension day is a date that is looked forward to by the small dealers with as much interest as it is by the pensioner himself. The stream commences at the most remote cross-roads grocery and flows with ever increasing volume to the larger centers of trade.

Of all the taxes paid to the national treasury, scarcely a perceptible part, other than the pensions, reaches the greater interior of the country. The other expenses of the government are in the great money centres, to large contractors-for customs houses, postoffices, for improvement of harbors, for navy yards, for ships of war, great guns and little ones, ammunition, etc. Yet there are cross-roads politicians, who sit on store boxes, whittling away in blissful ignorance, whose patriotism never rises above selfishness, condemning the whole pension system and crying out about frauds and taxes.

"A DISASTROUS NOMINATION"

The Democratic Cleveland Plain Dealer Bolts McLean and Roasts His Nomination.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer of Aug. 31, 1899, the leading Democratic organ of Northern Ohio, says of the nomination of McLean:

The disgrace is consummated. A convention professing to be Democratic has inflicted on the Democratic party of Ohio a candidate who has no claims whatever to Democratic support; who or organization; who has only pretended to act with the party for his own selfish ends and to the damage of the party he professes to affiliate with; who for fourteen years has been absent from the state and a resident of Washington, D. There is no mystery about the manner in which the nomination was procured. The means are too gross for concealment, if there had been any attempt to conceal them.

Does anyone imagine that, on his claims as a Democrat, or as a citizen of Ohio, or as a man, this alien from the state for fourteen years would have been nominated for governor of Ohio?

The other candidates on the ticket nominated yesterday are to be commiserated on their ill fortune. Like "poor dog Tray," they are in bad company and will inevitably suffer the consequences. The tens of thousands who will refuse to vote for the head of the ticket, preferring to stay at home and lose their votes, might, with a different head to the ticket, have secured the success of the entire Democratic list of candidates. That is now out of the question. They may prepare themselves for loss through the disgusted stay-at-home vote, and for slaughter at the polls by treachery and trading.

Preserved Soap Bubbles.

If one wishes to make soap bubbles which will last several days, prepare the following mixture in a room where the temperature is not lower than 65 degrees: Dissolve at a gentle heat one part of castile soap, previously cut into thin shavings, in 40 parts of water, distilled, if possible, and, when the solution is cold, filter it.

Having done this carefully, mix in a bottle by violent and persistent shaking, a little at a time, two parts of glycerin with three parts of the above mentioned solution of soap and allow it then to stand where it will not be in the way of dust. The liquid, which is at first clear, soon becomes turbid. After a few days a white precipitate will have risen to the top of the liquid, leaving the remainder clear. Draw off the clear portion with siphon (a bent tube) and keep it for use. To use a siphon it is necessary first to fill it and then to plunge the shorter arm into the liquid to be drawn off.

This mixture is called glycerin liquid. The film it forms is of such strength that a bubble four inches in diameter may be kept in the open air of a room for three hours if supported by a ring Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent of iron or bone an inch and a half in diameter or allowed to rest on some noft woolen fabric. If placed under a glass shade, it may last as long as three days. If filled with tobacco smoke, it looks very much as if it were solid.—Boston Transcript.

Two Big Necks.

"Once, when I was in New York some years ago," said A. W. Whelpley, "I found myself one afternoon standing before a counter in one of that city's largest dry goods houses selecting some collars.

"A good many men sallied up while I was there and ordered collars of various sizes, from 13 to 18.

"I heard a full, rather hoarse voice, ask for 'turn down, 20.'

"I turned to note the man with the thick neck and beheld Grover Cleveiand beside me. I knew him by his resemblance to the fellow on the cigar boxes.

"I had been given my change and a small packet of wares by the auburn haired goddess of the counter, and with one more glance at the generous proportions of the man of destiny I was moving away when, strangely enough, the autocrat of the house of congress, Tom Reed, came steaming up to the counter.

"There they stood, neither evidently knowing the proximity of the other.

"And bless me if he didn't ask for collars, 'second medium, welt band, turned front, 21!'

"I wondered if he thought the store provided a surveyor for such monstrous measures, but the goddess was equal to the occasion and handed out the desired size."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Why Cannibals Eat Men.

Some grewsome information has been collected by a member of the European medical fraternity in relation to tribes that eat men. A Frenchman figures that 20 per cent of all cannibals eat the dead in order to glorify them; 19 per cent eat great warriors in order that they may inherit their courage and eat dead children in order to renew their youth; 10 per cent partake of their near relatives from religious motives, either in connection with initiatory rites or to glorify deities, and 5 per cent feast in order to avenge themselves upon their enemies. Those who devour human flesh because of famine are reckoned as 18 per cent.

In short, deducting all these there remains only a portion of 24 per cent who partake of human flesh because they prefer it to other means of alimentation.

In the heart of Africa man eating is continued to this day, and to such an extent that in certain villages ribs and quarters of man meat can be bought. It is easier for the native there to kill men when they desire flesh than to go to the exertion of hunting game.-St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Man of Nerve.

The most curious feature in the case of a miner imprisoned for nearly 70 hours in the Gaylord coal mine at Plymouth, Pa., was his peacefully falling asleep in his tomb as soon as he realized that he was likely to be rescued. It would be difficult to imagine a more serene nervous system. There were plenty of chances, too, that the miners might not get the poor fellow out alive. When finally he did emerge, he behaved himself as a hero ought to behave-quietly, with less thought of himself than of his distracted mother, who at the moment was at home praying for him.—Collier's Weekly.

Is there a fair allotment of pensions under rulings of the pension department in each individual case? That is a question in which both the public and the soldiers are interested. Of course it would take more than human wisdom in so large a mass to deal out equal and exact justice to each individual, but we will venture to say that there is no business in the country conducted so closely along the lines laid down by the written rules, and no cratic principles, but of the barrel and lish a claim by such a preponderance of evidence. ## "A DISASTROUS NOMINATION"

The Democratic Cleveland Plain Dealer Bolts McLean and Roasts His Nomination

The Cleveland Plain Dealer of Aug. 31, 1899, the leading Democratic organ of Northern Ohio, says of the nomination of McLean:

The disgrace is consummated. A convention professing to be Democratic has inflicted on the Democratic party of Ohio a candidate who has no claims whatever to Democratic support; who is not loyal to Democratic principles or organization; who has only pretended to act with the party for his own selfish ends and to the damage of the party he professes to affiliate with; who for fourteen years has been absent from the state and a resident of Washington, D. C.

It is not a Democratic nomination in any way, shape or manner. It has no claim to the support of Democrats who are true to the principles and organizations of their party in Ohio.

The candidate represents nothing but his own selfish interests, and those interests are antagonistic to Democratic welfare. No Democrat who refuses to vote for him can be justly accused of bolting a Democratic nomination, for the nominee is not entitled to consideration as a Democrat. John R. McLean at the head of the ticket nominated at Zanesville yesterday represents himself only. Behind him are not the Democracy of Ohio, but his paid henchmen. His nomination was not the triumph of Democourt where it is necessary to estab. the boss. The greatest calamity that could befall the Democracy of Ohio would be his election. That, however, fortunately is an impossibility. Despite boodling and bossing, he will be civil war.

> He knows he is foredoomed to defeat. The men who secured his nomination know it. He and they know that his campaign will be disastrous to Democratic hopes this year and next in Ohio. That is of little consequence to him, compared with the effect the nomination may have in furthering the ulterior schemes of the nominee. The total wreck of the Democratic state and local ticket in Ohio this year and the discouraging effect it will have on the greater struggle next year count for nothing if McLean can force himself on the party as a nominal Democrat and use his present position as a stepping stone to higher positions hereafter.

There is no mystery about the manner in which the nomination was procured. The means are too gross for concealment, if there had been any attempt to conceal them.

Does anyone imagine that, on his claims as a Democrat, or as a citizen of Ohio, or as a man, this alien from the state for fourteen years would have been nominated for governor of Ohio? Would there have been a dozen delegates in the convention to vote for him had he been a man in but moderate financial circumstances, with no other claims to consideration than those he now has aside from his wealth and readiness to spend it to accomplish his ends? The question answers

The other candidates on the ticket nominated yesterday are to be commiserated on their ill fortune. Like 'poor dog Tray," they are in bad company and will inevitably suffer the consequences. The tens of thousands who will refuse to vote for the head of the ticket, preferring to stay at home and lose their votes, might, with a different head to the ticket, have secured the success of the entire Democratic list of candidates. That is now out of the question. They may prepare themselves for loss through the disgusted stay-at-home vote, and for slaughter at the polls by treachery and trading.

The custom of keeping birthdays is many thousands of years old. Pharaoh's birthday festivities are mentioned in the Pentateuch.

Preserved Soap Bubbles.

If one wishes to make soap bubbles which will last several days, prepare the following mixture in a room where the temperature is not lower than 65 degrees: Dissolve at a gentle heat one part of castile soap, previously cut into thin shavings, in 40 parts of water, distilled, if possible, and, when the solution is cold, filter it.

Having done this carefully, mix in a bottle by violent and persistent shaking, a little at a time, two parts of glycerin with three parts of the above mentioned solution of soap and allow it then to stand where it will not be in the way of dust. The liquid, which is at first clear, soon becomes turbid. After a few days a white precipitate will have risen to the top of the liquid, leaving the remainder clear. Draw off the clear portion with siphon (a bent tube) and keep it for use. To use a siphon it is necessary first to fill it and then to plunge the shorter arm into the liquid to be drawn off.

This mixture is called glycerin liquid. The film it forms is of such strength that a bubble four inches in diameter may be kept in the open air of a room for three hours if supported by a ring of iron or bone an inch and a half in diameter or allowed to rest on some noft woolen fabric. If placed under a glass shade, it may last as long as three days. If filled with tobacco smoke, it looks very much as if it were solid.-Boston Transcript.

Two Big Necks.

"Once, when I was in New York some years ago," said A. W. Whelpley, "I found myself one afternoon standing before a counter in one of that city's largest dry goods houses selecting some collars.

"A good many men sallied up while I was there and ordered collars of various sizes, from 13 to 18.

"I heard a full, rather hoarse voice, ask for 'turn down, 20.'

"I turned to note the man with the thick neck and beheld Grover Cleveiand beside me. I knew him by his resemblance to the fellow on the cigar boxes.

"I had been given my change and a small packet of wares by the auburn haired goddess of the counter, and with one more glance at the generous proportions of the man of destiny I was moving away when, strangely enough, the autocrat of the house of congress, Tom Reed, came steaming up to the counter.

Why Cannibals Eat Men.

Some grewsome information has been collected by a member of the European medical fraternity in relation to tribes that eat men. A Frenchman figures that 20 per cent of all cannibals eat the dead in order to glorify them; 19 per cent eat great warriors in order that they may inherit their courage and eat dead children in order to renew their youth; 10 per cent partake of their near relatives from religious motives, either in connection with initiatory rites or to glorify deities, and 5 per cent feast in order to avenge themselves upon their enemies. Those who devour human flesh because of famine are reckoned as 18 per cent.

In short, deducting all these there remains only a portion of 24 per cent who partake of human flesh because they prefer it to other means of alimentation.

In the heart of Africa man eating is continued to this day, and to such an extent that in certain villages ribs and quarters of man meat can be bought. It is easier for the native there to kill men when they desire flesh than to go to the exertion of hunting game.-St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Man of Nerve.

The most curious feature in the case of a miner imprisoned for nearly 70 hours in the Gaylord coal mine at Plymouth, Pa., was his peacefully falling asleep in his tomb as soon as he realized that he was likely to be rescued. It would be difficult to imagine a more serene nervous system. There were plenty of chances, too, that the miners might not get the poor fellow out alive. When finally he did emerge, he behaved himself as a hero ought to behave-quietly, with less thought of himself than of his distracted mother, who at the moment was at home praying for him.—Collier's Weekly.

His Complaint.

"There's only one thing that I object to," said the patient man with a last year's hat. "Pianos must be played or. That's what they were made for."

"You disapprove of some of the selections?"

"No, I don't. All I resent is having my daughter call that piece with which she wakens the house every night a 'slumber song.' "-Washington Star.

THE JUSTICE OF THE SYSTEM.

Nearly $16,000,000 to Be Paid Pensioners by the Columbus Agency In September - Benefits Are Farreaching Iu Business Circles as Well as Among the

Just now when the working force at the Columbus pension agency is bending all its energies to the competition of the rolls for the September payment, it is worth while considering what these payments mean. The Ohio Soldier, of Chillicothe, a leading organ of the old soldiers, presents these interesting facts:

Number of soldier pensioners of war for the union who draw pensions at the Columbus

Agency ..... 83.394 Amount paid .....$12,474,158.86 Number of widows..... 22,194 Amount paid.....$ 2,710,794.68 Number of pensioners of other wars.....

Amount paid...... 409,283.15 Total amount paid....$15,597,215.64

At first glance the number of pensioners may appear large to those who do not take into consideration the army it represents. The war for the union was the greatest contest of which there is any authentic history, and Ohio's enlistments in the war were in round numbers one-third of a mil lion of men.

Is there a fair allotment of pensions under rulings of the pension department in each individual case? That and the soldiers are interested. Of course it would take more than human wisdom in so large a mass to deal out equal and exact justice to each individual, but we will venture to say that there is no business in the country conducted so closely along the lines the matters of which soldiers com- spite boodling and bossing, he will be plain, and they do unquestionably work | the worst beaten candidate that has cases being rejected because the parties | civil war. are unable to establish their claims by ual, but it does not arise from the desire of the government to be illiberal, Men go out of our civil courts every day without justice because they are unable to establish things which they know to be facts, by testimony; and just so criminals are discharged bely connect them with the crime.

cause the testimony does not sufficient-As to the policy of paying pensions, that would seem to be long since fixed by the practice of all civilized nations. From the organization of the government it has prevailed in this country. In the early days, when the young nation had no money to even pay its pressing debts, lands were given in lieu. We have a striking example of this beneficence here in Ohio where all that now rich and populous section lying between the Scioto and Miami rivers was given to the Virginia soldiers of the revolutionary war. This allotment not proving sufficient, a second and third allotment was made in Indiana and Illinois. East of the Scioto is another tract of 5,000 square miles, known as United States military lands, which was given to other revolutionary soldiers; and to the southeast is another tract known as the Ohio Company's Purchase, which was in a large measure a grant to revolutionary soldiers. The land warrants to the soldiers of 1812 and the Mexican and Indian wars are familiar to our readers.

Referring again to the table, it shows the payment of pensions at the Columbus agency amounts to nearly a million and a third dollars per month. This is a large sum of money, but the good that flows from its quarterly distribution is manifold. First in point of importance is the substantial aid and comfort given in their old age to the soldiers who gave of their own life and strength that the nation might live—that government by the people might not perish from the face of the earth. This money is not hoarded; indeed it has more frequently been anticipated to meet the necessities of life, and goes at once to the grocer, the butcher, the clothier, the merchant.

and to pay rent. In turn these people pass it to the wholesaler and manufacturer, or to settle other indebtedness. Pension day is a date that is looked forward to by the small dealers with as much interest as it is by the pensioner himself. The stream commences at the most remote cross-roads grocery and flows with ever increasing volume to the larger centers of trade.

Of all the taxes paid to the national treasury, scarcely a perceptible part, other than the pensions, reaches the greater interior of the country. The other expenses of the government are in the great money centres, to large contractors-for customs houses, postoffices, for improvement of harbors, for navy yards, for ships of war, great guns and little ones, ammunition, etc. Yet there are cross-roads politicians, who sit on store boxes, whittling away in blissful ignorance, whose patriotism never rises above selfishness, condemning the whole pension system and crying out about frauds and taxes.

"A DISASTROUS NOMINATION"

The Democratic Cleveland Plain Dealer Bolts McLean and Roasts His Nomination

The Cleveland Plain Dealer of Aug. 31, 1899, the leading Democratic organ of Northern Ohio, says of the nomination of McLean:

The disgrace is consummated. A convention professing to be Democratic has inflicted on the Democratic party of Ohio a candidate who has no claims whatever to Democratic support; who is not loyal to Democratic principles or organization; who has only pretended to act with the party for his own selfish ends and to the damage of the party he professes to affiliate with; who for fourteen years has been absent from the state and a resident of Washington, D. C.

It is not a Democratic nomination in any way, shape or manner. It has no claim to the support of Democrats who are true to the principles and organizations of their party in Ohio.

The candidate represents nothing but his own selfish interests, and those interests are antagonistic to Democratic welfare. No Democrat who refuses to vote for him can be justly accused of bolting a Democratic nomination, for is a question in which both the public the nominee is not entitled to consideration as a Democrat.

John R. McLean at the head of the ticket nominated at Zanesville yesterday represents himself only. Behind him are not the Democracy of Ohio. but his paid henchmen. Governor Stone and my fellow-citizens: I am glad to participate with the families, friends and fellow-citizens of the Tenth Pennsylvania volunteers in this glad reunion.

You have earned the plaudits, not alone of the people of Pennsylvania, but of the whole nation. Your return has been the signal for a great demonstration of popular regard. From your landing at the Golden Gate in the Pacific to your home-coming here you find a warmth of welcome and a greeting of joyous hearts, which tell better than words the estimate of your countrymen, and their high appreciation of the services you have rendered the country. You made secure and permanent the victory of Dewey. You added new glory to American arms. You and your brave comrades engaged on other fields have enlarged the map of the United States and extended the jurisdiction of American liberty.

A Glorious Record.

But while we share in the joy that is yours, there remain with us softened and hallowed memories of those who went forth with you, not found in your ranks today. Your noble colonel, devoted to his men, beloved by his command and respected by his superior officers, gave his life to his country, with many others of his comrades. The nation sorrows with the bereaved. These heroes died for their country, and there is no nobler death. These troops represented the courage and conscience, the purpose and patriotism of their country. Whether in Cuba, Porto Rico, or the Philippines, or at home awaiting orders, they did their full duty, and all sought the post of greatest peril. They never faltered. The Eighth army corps in the Philippines have made a proud and excep-Privileged to be lonal record. tered out in April, when the ratifications of the treaty of peace were exchanged, they did not claim the privilege—they declined it. They voluntarily remained in the service and declared their purpose to stay until their places could be filled by new levies, and longer if the government needed them. Their service-and they understood it-was not to be in camp or garrison, free from danger, but on the battle line, where exposure and death confronted them, and where both have exacted their victims.

the insurgents in the Philippines, or their sympathizers at home. They had no part or patience with the men, few in number happily, who would have rejoiced to have seen them lay down their arms in the presence of an enemy whom they had just emancipated from Spanish rule, and who should have been their firmest friends. They furnished an example of devotion and sacrifice which will brighten the glorious record of American valor. They have secured not alone the gratitude of the government and the people, but for themselves and their descendants an imperishable distinction. They may not fully appreciate, and the country may not, the heroism of their conduct and its important support to the government. I think I do, and so I am here to express it. The mighty army of volunteers and over 250,000, regulars, numbering which last year responded to the call of the government with an alacrity without precedent or parallel, by the terms of their enlistment were to be mustered out with all of the regulars above 27,000 when peace was affected. Peace brought us the Philippines by treaty cession from Spain. The senate of the United States ratified the treaty. Every step taken was in obedience to the requirements of the constitution. It became our territory, and is ours as much as the Louisiana purchase, or Texas or Alaska. A body of insurgents, in no sense representing the sentiment of the people of the Islands, disputed our lawful authority, and even before the ratification of the treaty by the American senate were attacking the very forces who fought for and secured their freedom. .

Even had they been available it would have required months to transport them to the Philippines. Practically a new army had to be created. These loyal volunteers in the Philippines said: "We will stay until the government can organize an army at home and transport it to the seat of hostilities."
They did stay, cheerfully, uncomplainingly, patriotically. They suffered and sacrificed; they fought and fell; they drove back and punished the to finish it in two years.

Who refused to sound the retreat? Who stood in the breach when others weakened? Who resisted the suggestion of the unpatriotic that they should come home? Let me call the roll of the regiments and battalions that deserve to be perpetuated in the nation's annals. Their action was not a sudden impulse under excitement, but a deliberate determination to sustain, at the cost of life, if need be, the honor of their government, and the authority of its flag:

GOV. STONE'S MELON.

Missouri's Former Executive Shows How to Serve One.

In a Pine Street Restaurant In St. Louis the Other Day He Showed Some Friends How It Should Be Done - Three Watermelons Were

Ex-Governor William Joel Stone put aside his cares and burdens as a national Democratic committeeman the other day in St. Louis and became for a few minutes plain Bill Stone and ate watermelons as he used to do on the farm. The governor had met two friends on the street. One of them suggested something refreshing in the way of summer drinks. The governor declined. He did not at that moment fancy lemonade, soda water or any of the ordinary summer mixtures.

"I am thirsty, though, boys," he added. "I'm thirsty for a watermelon. There's nothing so good on a hot August afternoon as a rich, red, juicy watermelon." "Well, by all means let's have some watermelon," said the man who had first brought up the proposition. "Come on, governor." The three gentlemen walked slowly over to Pine street, the governor sharpening his appetite for watermelon on the way by calling up recollections of the time when, as a barefooted boy, he was the champion melon consumer of two states, says the St. Louis Republic. They entered one of the small coffee and sinkers restaurants where signs on the wall announce that the coffee is like that mother used to make, and where the pies are sold "per cut." Seating themselves on stools at an uncovered counter, the party ordered watermelon for three. The fruit, ice cold and as red as blood, was produced, symmetrically cut into wedges, each section placed on a plate and accompanied by knife and fork.

Governor Stone gave the layout one lingering look of scorn. "Take it away, sir," he ordered. "Don't you know how to serve watermelon? The idea-bringing little slices in here that I wouldn't offer an infant. Take it all back and bring me a melon, a whole one, the roundest, greenest one in your icebox," The restaurant man was flustered, but he obeyed orders. He brought back a melon which even the fastidious ex-governor could not find fault with.

"Boys," said the governor, "this is the only way to eat a melon. First, you see, I give it a thump to see if it's ripe. This one gives back a deep, melodious p-l-u-n-k as I thump it, and I know it's ripe. Then you take itcated with cruelty, our mercy with a I do wish I had a stump here to smash it on instead of this counter-and you bust 'er like this''-

The governor lifted the melon up and brought it down with a crash. It was a masterful "bust." The melon fell apart in irregular pieces, slender spars of the red pulp jutting out from the rind like stalactites from the roof

"Now, boys, pitch in," said the governor, picking up a piece of the "heart," which had no rind at all to bother him. "No knives and forks are needed here. Don't swallow the pulp, though, fellows. That stuff's wood. I used to eat it and think it the best part of the melon, but I have found it to be most indigestible."

The melon was paid for by the man who had offered to buy the drinks. Then the second one in the party orernor artistically "busted." When it was eaten, a suggestion was made that, every one having had enough, the party should break up. The governor objected.

"If we had taken juleps," he said, "the pernicious custom of treating would have demanded that every man buy a round of drinks. Each of you have bought, and, as the melon is only a substitute for the drinks, I think it is my turn, gentlemen, to set 'em up. Landlord, bring us another round of melon."

The third melon was "busted" and eaten like the other two. As the governor and his friends walked out on and pithily answered: the street the restaurant man called all the help from his kitchen and was well as his money will let him." overheard to say: "Bring out your mops melons all over the place. I wonder who on earth he is."

Revival of Croquet.

Signs of a revival of croquet have not been wanting for some months. The decision to change the name of the scientific game to "roque" may aid in bringing it about, says the Chicago Tribune. Croquet has had several periods of popularity. The first was in the latter part of the eighteenth century, but the height of its success was from 1860 to 1870, when it was the controls the convention at Zanesville there great summer social game. # FOURTH OF JULY AT PARIS.

Some Features Planned For Independence Day at the Exposition,

Arrangements are being made by the United States commission to the Paris exposition for a surprise to the world. The French government has already set aside July 4, 1900, as Independence day for the United States. Commissioner General Peck, in accordance with the honor shown the country, is arranging to show Paris how much American patriotism can be crowded into one day, says the Chicago Record. While no definite plans have been made, Mr. Peck and F. J. V. Skiff of the commission are determined that the celebration will be of such a nature that Parisians and people from other parts of the world who happen to be there at the time will not have any trouble in remembering it when other big features of the fair shall be forgotten.

There will be American oratory, that is certain, and, while the speakers have not been selected, it is known that the honor of addressing the nations of the world will fall to distinguished sons of America. About fireworks the commission is puzzled. A Fourth of July in the United States would be as dead as a lawn social without fireworks, but the members of the commission fear that the French government will object to the noisy cannon cracker and the skyrocket with its tail of fire. An effort will be made, however, to smuggle a generous amount of firecrackers into the show. One feature of the day as at present planned is a monster parade, not only in the exposition grounds, but all over Paris. This will be at night, probably, and will be gorgeously illuminated.

Every American in Paris will be requested to wear a United States flag, and the thousands of Americans resident in Paris will display the flag from their homes. All of the hotels will be draped in the national colors, and an effort will be made to have every American visitor see to it that on that day the flag floats from the house wherein he stops. Special excursions from America will be run, and every inducement will be made to make the attendance of Americans as large as OUR WORK EMBRACES possible. The American chamber of commerce in Paris is taking an interest in the proposed national celebration and will be in communication with the United States commission, making what suggestions it can. It will also raise a considerable fund to defray expenses which cannot be charged to any fund now at the disposal of the commission.

CORN IS KING IN KANSAS.

Tall Stalks and Big Ears That Are Exhibited.

Corn is the universal topic in Kansas these days. Corn starts the conversation on the cars. Cornstalks are stacked up at the station doors to show the travelers what that particular locality has done, says the Topeka correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. In the office of the Atchison Globe is a collection of stalks with their butts on the floor. When Editor Howe stands on tiptoe, he can just reach the ears with the tips of his fingers. Nothing less than 14 feet is considered worthy of show. Out at Downs, half way across the state, the station agent has on exhibition stalks which tower above the depot roof. A local poet has been inspired to the following:

The Kansas chinch bugs never die; Each season they appear, But cornstalks twenty-two feet high Have knocked them out this year.

The bugs they came-they came in vain; We'll live when they have flown; Give Kansas but her share of rain, And she will hold her own.

Some of the new crop is sufficiently advanced to justify weighing. One buyer, to illustrate the quality, is showing eight ears which tip the beam at two pounds each. Thirty-five such ears would weigh a bushel. In ordinary years corn from which 80 ears will weigh out a bushel is accounted good enough for Kansas.

Gallant Patriotism of the American Troops and the Philippine Roll of Honor - He Leaves the "Ungracious Task of Justification and Eulogy" of Aguinaldo to the Democrats.

President McKinley's speech at Pittsburg on Monday, Aug. 28, on the eccasion of the reception tendered the Tenth Pennsylvania regiment on its return from the Philippines was one of the finest examples of patriotic eloquence which has been heard in many months, as well as one of the best reviews of the war in the Philippines that has yet been presented to the American people. # FOURTH OF JULY AT PARIS.

Some Features Planned For Independence Day at the Exposition.

Arrangements are being made by the United States commission to the Paris exposition for a surprise to the world. The French government has already set aside July 4, 1900, as Independence day for the United States. Commissioner General Peck, in accordance with the honor shown the country, is arranging to show Paris how much American patriotism can be crowded into one day, says the Chicago Record. While no definite plans have been made, Mr. Peck and F. J. V. Skiff of the commission are determined that the celebration will be of such a nature that Parisians and people from other parts of the world who happen to be there at the time will not have any trouble in remembering it when other big features of the fair shall be forgotten.

There will be American oratory, that is certain, and, while the speakers have not been selected, it is known that the honor of addressing the nations of the world will fall to distinguished sons of America. About fireworks the commission is puzzled. A Fourth of July in the United States would be as dead as a lawn social without fireworks, but the members of the commission fear that the French government will object to the noisy cannon cracker and the skyrocket with its tail of fire. An effort will be made, however, to smuggle a generous amount of firecrackers into the show. One feature of the day as at present planned is a monster parade, not only in the exposition grounds, but all over Paris. This will be at night, probably, and will be gorgeously illuminated.

Every American in Paris will be requested to wear a United States flag, and the thousands of Americans resident in Paris will display the flag from their homes. All of the hotels will be draped in the national colors, and an effort will be made to have every American visitor see to it that on that day the flag floats from the house wherein he stops. Special excursions from America will be run, and every inducement will be made to make the attendance of Americans as large as possible. The American chamber of commerce in Paris is taking an interest in the proposed national celebration and will be in communication with the United States commission, making what suggestions it can. It will also raise a considerable fund to defray expenses which cannot be charged to any fund now at the disposal of the commission.

CORN IS KING IN KANSAS.

Tall Stalks and Big Ears That Are Exhibited.

Corn is the universal topic in Kansas these days. Corn starts the conversation on the cars. Cornstalks are stacked up at the station doors to show the travelers what that particular locality has done, says the Topeka correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Our Type. In the office of the Atchison Globe is a collection of stalks with their butts on the floor. When Editor Howe stands on tiptoe, he can just reach the ears with the tips of his fingers. Nothing less than 14 feet is considered worthy of show. Out at Downs, half way on exhibition stalks which tower above the depot roof. A local poet has been inspired to the following:

The Kansas chinch bugs never die; Each season they appear, But cornstalks twenty-two feet high Have knocked them out this year.

The bugs they came—they came in vain; We'll live when they have flown; Give Kansas but her share of rain, And she will hold her own.

Some of the new crop is sufficiently advanced to justify weighing. One buyer, to illustrate the quality, is showing eight ears which tip the beam a' two pounds each. Thirty-five such ears would weigh a bushel. In ordinary years corn from which 80 ears will weigh out a bushel is accounted good enough for Kansas.

Elequent Tribute to Returned Pennsylvania Troops.

TAGALS WERE THE ACGRESSORS.

Gallant Patriotism of the American Troops and the Philippine Roll of Honor - He Leaves the "Ungracious Task of Justification and Eulogy" of Aguinaldo to the Democrats.

President McKinley's speech at Pittsburg on Monday, Aug. 28, on the occasion of the reception tendered the Tenth Pennsylvania regiment on its return from the Philippines was one of the finest examples of patriotic eloquence which has been heard in many months, as well as one of the best reviews of the war in the Philippines that has yet been presented to the American people. It should be read by every American citizen. The speech in full is as follows:

Governor Stone and my fellow-citizens: I am glad to participate with the families, friends and fellow-citizens of the Tenth Pennsylvania volunteers in this glad reunion.

You have earned the plaudits, not alone of the people of Pennsylvania. but of the whole nation. Your return has been the signal for a great demonstration of popular regard. From your landing at the Golden Gate in the Pacific to your home-coming here you find a warmth of welcome and a greeting of joyous hearts, which tell better than words the estimate of your countrymen, and their high appreciation of the services you have rendered the country. You made secure and permanent the victory of Dewey. You added new glory to American arms. You and your brave comrades engaged on other fields have enlarged the map of the United States and extended the jurisdiction of American

A Glorious Record.

But while we share in the joy that is yours, there remain with us softened and hallowed memories of those who went forth with you, not found in your ranks today. Your noble colonel, devoted to his men, beloved by his command and respected by his su-perior officers, gave his life to his country, with many others of his com-rades. The nation sorrows with the bereaved. These heroes died for their country, and there is no nobler death. These troops represented the courage and conscience, the purpose and patriotism of their country. Whether in Cuba, Porto Rico, or the Philippines, or at home awaiting orders, they did their full duty, and all sought the post of greatest peril. They never faltered. The Eighth army corps in the Philippines have made a proud and exceptional record. Privileged to be mustered out in April, when the ratifications of the treaty of peace were exchanged, they did not claim the privilege-they declined it. They voluntarily remained in the service and declared their purpose to stay until their places could be filled by new levies, and longer if the government needed Their service-and they understood it-was not to be in camp or garrison, free from danger, but on the battle line, where exposure and death confronted them, and where both have exacted their victims.

Did Not Stack Arms.

not run away. They were not serving the insurgents in the Philippines, or their sympathizers at home. They had no part or patience with the men, few in number happily, who would have rejoiced to have seen them lay down their arms in the presence of an enemy whom they had just emancipated from Spanish rule, and who should have been their firmest friends. They furnished an example of devotion and sacrifice which will brighten the glorious record of American valor. They have secured not alone the gratitude of the government and the people, but for themselves and their descendants an imperishable distinction. They may not fully appreciate, and the country may not, the heroism of their conduct and its important support to the government. I think I do, and so I am here to express it.

The mighty army of volunteers and regulars, numbering over 250,000, which last year responded to the call of the government with an alacrity without precedent or parallel, by the terms of their enlistment were to be mustered out with all of the regulars above 27,000 when peace was affected. Peace brought us the Philippines by treaty cession from Spain. The senate of the United States ratified the treaty. Every step taken was in obedience to the requirements of the constitution. It became our territory, and is ours as much as the Louisiana purchase, or Texas or Alaska. A body of insurgents, in no sense representing the sentiment of the people of the islands, disputed our lawful authority, and even before the ratification of the treaty by the American senate were attacking the very forces who fought for and secured their freedom. •

Loyalty of Volunteers.

This was the situation in April, 1899, the date of the exchange of ratifications-with only 27,000 regulars subect to the unquestioned direction of the executive, and they for the most part on duty in Cuba or Porto Rico, or invalided at home after their severe campaign in the trepics. Even had they been available it would have required months to transport them to the Philippines. Practically a new army had to be created. These loyal volunteers in the Philippines said: "We will stay until the government can organize an army at home and transport it to the seat of hostilities."

They did stay, cheerfully, uncomplainingly, patriotically. They suffered and sacrificed; they fought and fell; they drove back and punished the to finish it in two years.

rebeis who resisted rederal authority, and who, with force, attacked the sovereignty of the United States in its newly acquired territory. Without them then and there we would have been practically helpless on land; our flag would have had its first stain and the American name its first ignominy. The brilliant victories of the navy and army in the bay and city of Manilla would have been won in vain; our obligations to civilization would have SAYS PROPER WAY "IS TO BUST 'ER." remained temporarily unperformed: chaos would have reigned, and whatever government there was would have been by one man, and not by consent of the governed. Who refused to sound the retreat? Who stood in the breach when others weakened? Who resisted the suggestion of the unpatriotic that they should come home? Let me call the roll of the regiments and battalions that deserve to be perpetuated in the nation's annals. Their action was not a sudden impulse under excitement, but a deliberate determination to sustain, at the cost of life. if need be, the honor of their government, and the authority of its flag:

we have only honor and gratitude. The world will never know the restraint of our soldiers-their self-control under the most exasperating conditions. For weeks subjected to the insults and duplicity of the insurgent leaders, they preserved the status quo, remembering that they were under an order from their government to sacredly observe the terms of the protocol in letter and spirit, and avoid all conflict, except in defense, pending the negotiations of the treaty of peace. They were not the aggressors. did not begin hostilities against the insurgents pending the ratification of the treaty of peace in the senate, great as was their justification, because their orders from Washington forbade it. I take all the responsibility for that direction. Otis only executed the orders of his government, and the soldiers, under great provocation to strike back. obeyed. Until the treaty was ratified we had no authority beyond Manilla city, bay and harbor. We then had no other title to defend, no authority beyond that to maintain. # GOV. STONE'S MELON.

Missouri's Former Executive Shows How to Serve One.

Ex-Governor William Joel Stone put aside as cares and burdens as a national Democratic committeeman the other day in St. Louis and became for a few minutes plain Bill Stone and ate watermelons as he used to do on the farm. The governor had met two friends on the street. One of them suggested something refreshing in the way of summer drinks. The governor declined. He did not at that moment fancy lemonade, soda water or any of the ordinary summer mixtures.

"I am thirsty, though, boys," he added. "I'm thirsty for a watermelon. There's nothing so good on a hot August afternoon as a rich, red, juicy watermelon." "Well, by all means let's have some watermelon," said the man who had first brought up the proposition. "Come on, governor." The three gentlemen walked slowly over to Pine street, the governor sharpening his appetite for watermelon on the way by calling up recollections of the time when, as a barefooted boy, he was the champion melon consumer of two states, says the St. Louis Republic. They entered one of the small coffee and sinkers restaurants where signs on the wall announce that the coffee is like that mother used to make, and where the pies are sold "per cut." Seating themselves on stools at an uncovered counter, the party ordered watermelon for three. The fruit, ice cold and as red as blood, was produced, symmetrically cut into wedges, each section placed on a plate and accompanied by knife and fork.

Governor Stone gave the layout one lingering look of scorn. "Take it away, sir," he ordered. "Don't you know how to serve watermelon? The idea-bringing little slices in here that I wouldn't offer an infant. Take it all back and bring me a melon, a whole one, the roundest, greenest one in your icebox," The restaurant man was flustered, but he obeyed orders. He brought back a melon which even the fastidious ex-governor could not find fault with.

"Boys," said the governor, "this is the only way to eat a melon. First, you see, I give it a thump to see if it's ripe. This one gives back a deep, melodious p-l-u-n-k as I thump it, and I know it's ripe. Then you take it-I do wish I had a stump here to smash it on instead of this counter-and you bust 'er like this''-

The governor lifted the melon up and brought it down with a crash. It was a masterful "bust." The melon fell apart in irregular pieces, slender spars of the red pulp jutting out from the rind like stalactites from the roof of a cavern.

"Now, boys, pitch in," said the governor, picking up a piece of the "heart," which had no rind at all to bother him. "No knives and forks are needed here. Don't swallow the pulp, though, fellows. That stuff's wood. I used to eat it and think it the best part of the melon, but I have found it to be most indigestible."

The melon was paid for by the man who had offered to buy the drinks. Then the second one in the party ordered a fresh melon, which the governor artistically "busted." When it was eaten, a suggestion was made that, every one having had enough, the party should break up. The governor objected. "If we had taken juleps," he said. "the pernicious custom of treating would have demanded that every man buy a round of drinks. Each of you have bought, and, as the melon is only a substitute for the drinks, I think it is my turn, gentlemen, to set 'em up. Landlord, bring us another round of melon."

FOURTH OF JULY AT PARIS.

Some Features Planned For Independence Day at the Exposition.

Arrangements are being made by the United States commission to the Paris exposition for a surprise to the world. The French government has already set aside July 4, 1900, as Independence day for the United States. Commissioner General Peck, in accordance with the honor shown the country, is arranging to show Paris how much American patriotism can be crowded into one day, says the Chicago Record. While no definite plans have been made, Mr. Peck and F. J. V. Skiff of the commission are determined that the celebration will be of such a nature that Parisians and people from other parts of the world who happen to be there at the time will not have any trouble in remembering it when other big features of the fair shall be forgotten.

There will be American oratory, that is certain, and, while the speakers have not been selected, it is known that the honor of addressing the nations of the world will fall to distinguished sons of America. About fireworks the commission is puzzled. A Fourth of July in the United States would be as dead as a lawn social without fireworks, but the members of the commission fear that the French government will object to the noisy cannon cracker and the skyrocket with its tail of fire. An effort will be made, however, to smuggle a generous amount of firecrackers into the show. One feature of the day as at present planned is a monster parade, not only in the exposition grounds, but all over Paris. This will be at night, probably, and will be gorgeously illuminated.

Every American in Paris will be requested to wear a United States flag, and the thousands of Americans resident in Paris will display the flag from their homes. Special excursions from America will be run, and every inducement will be made to make the attendance of Americans as large as possible. The American chamber of commerce in Paris is taking an interest in the proposed national celebration and will be in communication with the United States commission, making what suggestions it can. It will also raise a considerable fund to defray expenses which cannot be charged to any fund now at the disposal of the commission.

15TH YEAR. NO. 75.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 6, 1899.

APPEALED TO RULERS.

Labori Sent Telegrams to William and Humbert.

WANTS EX-ATTACHES TO TESTIFY.

The French Government Also to Ask That Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi Be Allowed to Appear as Witnesses. Ex-Minister Testified For Dreyfus.

RENNES, France, Sept. 5.-M. Labori telegraphed personal appeals to Emperor William and King Humbert to grant permission to Colonel Schwartzkoppen and Colonel Panizzardi, Genman and Italian military attaches in Paris in 1894, to come to Rennes to testify in the trial of Captain Dreyfus.

The appeals were couched in eloquent terms, invoking the assistance of their majesties in the name of justice and humanity. They are quite supplementary to the formal application that will be made by the government commissary, Major Carriere.

Both Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi must consult their respective sovereigns before starting, but the counsel for Dreyfus fully expect them to arrive here, if they come at all, in time to give their testimony on Thursday, in which case the trial would probably conclude this week and the verdict be delivered on Friday or Saturday. RENNES, France, Sept. 6.—The judges in the Dreyfus courtmartial deliberated over the application of M. Labori for an order upon the government commissary to request the French government to invite foreign governments to supply documents enumerated in the bordereau. It was unanimously decided to reject the application of M. Labori on the ground that the court did not consider itself competent to pronounce a judgment which might entail diplomatic action by the government.

It was also decided unanimously to examine M. de Cernuschi, the Austro-Hungarian refugee, today behind closed doors.

in view of the rejection by the courtmartial of M. Labori's motion, the defense intend to issue subpoenas to Colonels Schwartzkoppon and Panizzardi. The subpoenas will be transmitted by the courtmartial, through the minister of war, the minister of justice and the minister of foreign affairs, successvely, and thence through the French ambassadors at Berlin and Rome.

Colonels Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi can elect whether they shall appear before the courtmartial or make depositions before magistrates in their respective countries, in which latter case the depositions will be transmitted as evidence to the courtmartial through diplomatic channels. This probably means at least weeks of delay.

The examination of the secret espionage dossier mentioned by Captain Cuignet during Monday's sitting of the courtmartial occupied the greater part of the secret session of the court.

The first witness who was called to the bar was the reporter, Bassett, whom The Matin sent to London to interview Major Count Ferdinand Walzin Esterhazy. . The witness deposed that Esterhazy confessed to him that he wrote the bordereau under orders from Colonel Sandherr, who was then chief of the Secret intelligence bureau. The order, Esterhazy said, was to catch the traitor at the headquarters of the general staff whom Esterhazy afterward said was Captain Dreyfus.

Major Carriere here burst out with an extraordinary protest against Major Esterhazy's insinuation against Colonel Sandherr. "I protest," he cried, "in the name and memory of Colonel Sandherr, against the insinuations introduced against him.

M. Labori, however, ignored this protest, which he styled "a ridiculous prebention."

M. Labori then called upon General Roget to testify regarding letters received from Major Esterhazy since the opening of this trial.

He replied that he only opened one letter from Major Esterhazy, which he forwarded to Colonel Jouanst. General Roget added that he had declined to receive other letters.

M. Labori then asked Colonel Jouaust to have the letters read.

Colonel Jouanst at first declined, but M. Labori insisted so firmly that Colonel Jouanst, after wrangling a while, gave way and consented that the letter should be read later.

General Roget then read the one Esterhazy letter which he admitted having opened. In this letter Major Esterhazy said he could not prove the existence of the alleged syndicate organized in the interest of Dreyfus, and complained that the general staff had refused to give him a fair hearing.

M. Labori then put a series of questions intended to bring out the fact that the general staff had made use of Major Esterhazy even after he was known to be unreliable.

General Roget said he had not considered Major Esterhazy's avowals to be of any value.

M. Labori sought to question General Roget more closely on his statement that none of the generals of the general staff had any relations with Major Esterhazy, but Colonel Jouanst declined to allow further discussion. This led to another scene between the president of the courtmartial and counsel for the defense, M. Labori declaring that General Roget, who came here more as public prosecutor than as a witness, refused to reply to probing questions.

A little later M. Labori pushed the known as the liberating document, which, it is alleged, freed Esterhazy.

General Zurlinden spoke a few words respecting the general staff's belief in Major Esterhazy.

General Roget, in answer to a remark by M. Demange, said he thought Estera y innocent of treason.

General Roget then delivered a short discourse in reply to the statement of M de Fond Lamotte on Saturday that the phrase in the bordereau, "I am going to the manoeuvers," showed that Dreyfus could not be the author of the bordereau. General Roget maintained that M. Lamotte was wrong.

Captain Dreyfus arose and in a clear voice emphatically insisted that the circular of May 17, 1894, announcing that the probationers would not go to the manoeuvers was written in the clearest language, which the court would see if it were read. He reiterated that he had never asked to go to the manoeuvers, for he was absolutely convinced that such a request would not be granted.

M. Deffes, a reporter for The Temps. testified that he saw Esterhazy in London, and that the latter confessed that he was the author of the bordereau. The witness added that he raised the question of the letters of Madame Boulane and brought away the impression that Esterhazy wrote the "Uhlan" let-

During the session of the courtmartial a strong plea for Dreyfus and evidence in his behalf was given by Senator Trarieux, ex-minister of jus-

When Dreyfus was convicted, the witness said, he was convinced, like everybody else, of the prisoner's guilt, but violent diatribes on the fact that Dreyfus was a Jew awakened his suspicions. He, therefore, consulted M. Hanotaux (late prime minister of France), and the latter informed the witness of the existence of the "Cette Canaille de D-" document, though M. Hanotaux failed to inform him that it had been imparted to the judges of the first courtmartial unknown to the prisoner. This fact the witness learned later.

Trarieux denounced the secret communication of the document as a monstrous illegality and a violation of the most sacred rights of the defense. The witness described as impossible the hypothesis advanced by M. Teyssonieres to convince the witness that Dreyfus was guilty. The witness' doubts were confirmed when he heard that M. Scheurer-Kestner had secured proofs of the innocence of Dreyfus and the guilt of another.

M. Trarieux said he could not agree to a single conclusion reached by General Gonse in his correspondence with Lieutenant Colonel Picquart, and said the latter's cemoval from the secret intelligence department was the result of underhand plotting by some one opposed to revision. The witness enum-erated in support of this statement various forged documents which, he asserted, had emanated from the secret intelligence department. He said he assumed the chiefs were decieved.

M. Trarieux pointed out that if any proof wnatsoever of the guilt of Drey-fus existed in 1896 General Gonse would have shown Lieutenant Colonel Picquart an order to stop the investigation.

After an interview with M. Scheurer-Kestner, the witness said, he became convinced of the guilt or Esterhazy.

M. Trarieux mentioned an interview he had with a foreign ambassador, who declared that Dreyfus never had relations with him nor with any military attache or officer of the army of his country. M. Trarieux asserted the importance of this statement of the ambassador, who energetically reaffirmed the absolute innocence of Dreyfus. The ambassador added that he had investigated and found nothing to implicate

Dreyfus. Further, the ambassador said, he had seen in the hands of Colonel Panizzardi a letter from Colonel Schwartzkoppen proving the guilt of Esterhazy, who, his excellency added, generally communicated information of minor value. Moreover, at the time of M. Scheurer-Kestner's revelations Major Esterhazy called upon Colonel Schwartzkoppen, and it was then that a dramatic scene of violent recriminations and threats occurred. The ambassador also showed the witness that the "Cette Canaille de D-" phrase did not apply to

M. Trarieux explained that the ambassador had accorded him pormission to communicate it to the judicial authorities. In a subsequent interview which the witness had with the same ambassador the latter had informed him that the Henry forgery, which had just been discovered, had been long known to his government and that the French government had been aware of it for a dor that Colonel Schwartzkuppen nau had relations with Dreyfus were absolutely unfounded. On the contrary, the witness asserted. Colonel Panizzardi expressly stated that Dreyfus had question on General Billot on what is no relations with any foreign attache.

At one point he declared in part: "It may be said that I should not adduce here the evidence of a foreigner. That is M. Cavignac's opinion, and I do not oppose it, but it has no foundation either in fact or in law. The testimony of foreigners is not disallowed by law." He said Colonel Panizzardi was cited to appear in a case of swindling at Versailles, and a foreign witness had been examined the day before. Even the supreme head of the army, the gallant soldier De Galliffet, had not shrunk from adducing before the court of cassation the testimony of General Talbot.

THE BLOCKADE OF LUZON.

Way to Stut Off Rebels' Sources of Supplies and Ammunition Causing Considerable Concern.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The matter of making an effective blockade in the Philippines, and especially around the island of Luzon, so as to prevent the insurgents from obtaining ammunition and supplies, is one that is giving the administration considerable concern. It has not been dedmed feasible to proclaim a blockade, as it would indicate a state of war and possibly open a way to the recognition of the incurgents.

Whether or not it is feasible to attack, subdue and garrison all the ports of Luzon which might serve as ports of supply for the Filipinos has not yet been determined.

The president has been advised that the navy should be utilized.

At every port a naval vessel could be stationed, and under the military law of the island every incoming vessel could be made to exhibit its manifest. One trouble about carrying out this plan is the fact that there is not a sufficient number of light draught vessels to go into all the places where the Filipinos can receive their supplies.

Dates Set For Troops to Depart.

Washington, Sept. 6 .- Dates have been set for the departure of three regiments of volunteers for the Philippines. One-half of the Thirty-fourth, Colonel Kennon, will sail on Sept. 8, on the Columbia, the remainder of the regiment on Sept. 15, on the Belgian King. # CHICAGO TO GET ENCAMPMENT.

Salt Lake City Also After It-President McKinley Attended Big Meeting-Also Visited Sampson's Fleet—Enthusiasm During the Great Parade.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—The actual business of the G. A. R. encampment began today at the Grand Opera House. The fight for commander-in-chief continues, and each candidate still feels sure that he will land a winner. Colonel Albert D. Shaw of Watertown, N. Y., seems to lead, with Comrade Leo Rassieur of St. Louis a good second. There was not much talk about the office of senior vice commander-inchief, the canvass for that office being rather quiet and it is not known who will get the place. M. Minton of Kentucky will probably be named for junior vice commander, while William H. Baker of Massachusetts seems to have the call for surgeon general-in-chief.

The contest among the cities for the holding of next year's encampment has narrowed down to Chicago and Salt Lake City. It is practically conceded that Chicago will be the winner.

The committee on pensions of the national encampment met Tuesday and completed the report, around which the Advance and Shortage In Steel May Dedebate of the sessions is likely to center. It is said that, while the committee will suggest certain changes in the laws that now seem to be equivocal, and will cite instances of hardships that have the heavy advance in the steel market. come as a result of the interpretation of | There are 12 of the torpedoboats and dethe law, it will not join in the denunciation of the pension commissioner, H.

During the parade Tuesday, from the fronts of the buildings to the curb the people were packed in a solid mass and even breathing was difficult. As a result of the crush about 400 men, women and children were overcome and taken from the crowd to various hos-

With President McKinley and Mayor Ashbridge there were in the reviewing stand: Rear Admiral Melville, Rear Admiral Sampson, Secretary Root, Secretary Wilson, President Scherman of the Philippines commission and others.

The parade was six hours and ten minutes in passing the reviewing stand. After a portion of the department of Pennsylvania had passed, these veterans bringing up the rear, the president left to visit Admiral Sampson's fleet, Governor Stone reviewing the remainder of the procession.

When the Ohio posts appeared the aged paraders became wild with enthusiasm. One veteran broke ranks and, standing before his comrades, shouted: "Three cheers for the biggest man on earth-Major William McKinley of Ohio."

This invitation for cheers was followed by a mighty roar, which was echoed and re-echoed among the spectators for blocks.

As the various posts passed in review the president stood smiling and bowing and, on numerous occasions, waved his hand to the more enthusiastic of the marchers.

After leaving the reviewing stand the president was entertained at luncheon in the rooms of the department of pub-

The visit of the president to the squadron proved to be the greatest marine spectacle ever seen nere. It was the intention to have Mr. McKinley visit only the New York, but he grew so enthusiastic over the great fighters that he suddenly made up his mind to inspect all of them. Accordingly he visited the flagship New York, cruiser Brooklyn and the battleships Indiana, Massachusetts and Texas. It was his intention to also visit the cruiser Detroit, but much to his regret he was unable to do so on account of lack of time. There was almost a continuous roar of guns during the one and three-quarter hours that it took to inspect the vessels. In all, 462 guns were fired by the squadron in president's salutes. On the New York and Indiana the men acted as they do in battle. The president was much interested. The return of the president to the shore was an inspiring one. The Texas was moored furthest up the river, and the presidential party had to pass each of the great vessels on its return to shore. The river was alive with craft crowded to their utmost capacity and a great noise was being made. As the barge neared the flagship the signal was given to salnte, and six big ships belched forth a terrific salute. Every man and officer on the ships stood at tention and the bands added to the din by playing "Hail to the Chief." The barge was stopped while the salute was being fired, and after it had ceased the 12 brawny sailors pulled for the shore.

A noticeable feature of the visit to the fleet was the president's cordial greeting of the men on each ship. He never once forgot the "boys," and never once forgot the "boys," bowed to them upon boarding and leaving the ships.

Enthusiasm was rampant last night. Wherever President McKinley appeared he received a tremendous ovation, par-ticularly at the Academy of Music, where the Grand Army was officially welcomed to the city and state by Mayor Ashbridge and Governor Stone.

General Sickies was aireaux seared when the president arrived, accompanied by Secretaries Root and Wilson. When President McKinley observed the veteran he walked toward him and General Sickles arose from his seat. They shook hands cordially while the audience, numbering about 3,000, made the house ring with their plandits.

TWO CENTS

A few minutes later the presidential party, with Admiral Sampson and his staff, left the Academy of Music and proceeded to Odd Fellows' hall, where President McKinley was the guest of honor at a banquet tendered by George G. Meade post, the Lafayette post of New York and the Kingsley post of Boston.

The presidential party later left for Washington.

Some people residing in East End are of the opinion that after the election next spring, the fire force at the East End station should be increased. There are only two men on duty, and during the day Fireman Finley does street work, while in the evening Fireman Terrance does police duty. "There is enough work for two men in the house all the time," said an East End resident today, "and the addition of one man would be of material assistance to the present force should there be a fire of any consequence.

"With another ward, which gives an addition of two councilmen, the fire department should also be granted another man. Looking after the interests of the city is the firemen's lot, and work enough for another man could soon be provided."

When the two new potteries in this part of the city are in full operation many of the people who work in them will desire to live in East End. Where are the homes for these people? By a trip through the town yesterday after noon there were found but two vacant houses in the entire East End. The fact has become generally known that many persons who will work in the new plants are to come from Trenton and other eastern pottery centers, and the skilled workmen who have families will need homes. Many houses have been built in the suburb during the summer, but these are all occupied. Where the new workmen are to live is a matter that is yet to be determined. They Are Deserving of Your Warm Commendation.

The average passenger on the street car becomes very impatient at the slighest delay in transportation facilities on the line, and at times becomes very angry at the conductor or motorman when he answers them in crisp, business like tones. This is unjust and should not be indulged in. The street car employees on our own line are, as a rule, very gentlemanly, courteous and obliging, and this in the face of more than ordinary difficult surroundings, as the line between East Liverpool and Wellsville requires constant and unceasing care and watchfulness on the part of the man at the lever. Remember this, readers of the News Review, and make note of the fact that the motorman, under such circumstances, is compelled to cut his conversation short and use the most terse and business-like answers to very, very many questioners. Our motormen are deserving of warm commendadation.

MR. BRYAN'S REASONING

Futile Efforts to Establish His Jeffersonianism.

COMMERCIAL VS. LEGAL RATIO

An Examination Into the Efforts the Free Silver Leader Makes to Harmonize Thomas Jefferson's Monetary Principles With Bryan's Theories-Republicans and Jefferson Identical.

The professional candidate of the Democratic party for the presidency, William Jennings Bryan, who is said to have made a fortune out of his lecturing during the past three years, never loses an opportunity to hitch his theories to the great name of Jefferson.

His political vagaries comport well with his own personality, but his persistent efforts to make them fit the stalwart father of Democracy are extremely ludicrous. Tom Thumb's garments would have as easily fit Hercules.

In an article entitled "Jeffersonian Principles." in the June number of the North American Review, he begins by saying "The admirers of Thomas Jefferson have reason to be gratified at the growing interest in the principles enunciated by him." His closing sentence is: "The renaissance of Jeffersonian principles is at hand."

In trying to make the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the obsolete ratio of 16 to 1 fit with Thomas Jefferson's financial policy, he says: "Jefferson is also quoted in support of the commercial ratio as against the legal ratio."

He then proceeds to show why Jefferson advocated "the commercial ratio as against the legal ratio," saying: "But those who thus quote him ignore the important fact that when he recommended the adoption of the commercial ratio, it was at a time when all the gold and silver produced from the mines could find access to the government mints, and when the commercial ratio was the resultant of the different coinage ratios acting on the metals. For the United States to have established a ratio appreciably different from those then existing, would have added a new and disturbing factor."

Eliminate all of Bryan from this quotation and leave only Jefferson's principle, and we find that Thomas Jefferson supported "a commercial ration as against a legal ratio."

William J. Bryan is in favor of the very reverse, i. e., a legal ratio as against the commercial ratio. In this he is certainly not Jeffersonian.

Thomas Jefferson's own words uttered in 1782 are: "THE PROPOR-TION BETWEEN THE VALUES OF GOLD AND SILVER IS A MERCAN-TILE PROBLEM ALTOGETHER. The legal proportion in Spain is 16 for 1; in England 151/2 for 1; in France 15 for 1. The Spaniards and English are found in experience to retain an overproportion of gold coins, and to lose their silver. The French have a greater proportion of silver. The difference at market has been on the decrease. The financier states it at present at 141/2 for one. JUST PRINCIPLES WILL LEAD US TO DISREGARD LEGAL PROPORTIONS ALTOGETHER; TO INQUIRE INTO THE MARKET PRICE OF GOLD IN THE SEVERAL COUNTRIES WITH WHICH WE SHALL PRINCIPALLY BE CON-NECTED IN COMMERCE, AND TO TAKE AN AVERAGE FROM THEM."

If Thomas Jefferson's principles were like Bryan's, he would have said: "The proportion between the values of gold and silver is a LEGAL problem. Don't be influenced by the monetary principles of England, Spain, France or any other European power, because the United States is great enough to establish a ratio between gold and silver, and force every other country in the world to bow the knee to its financial policy. Just principles will lead us to disregard MERCANTILE proportions altogether. We need not inquire into the market price of gold in the several countries with which we shall principally be connected in commerce, and take an average from them. This would be un-American."

By a Bryanite juggling of words white is made black, diametrically opposing principles are harmonized, and the great Thomas Jefferson is presented to the American people dressed in the swaddling clothes of William Jennings Bryan.

Thomas Jefferson's principle was to discover by investigations in Europe the value of GOLD in the markets. and then coin silver in accordance with its value as compared with gold. That is, he made the commercial value of gold the standard by which to fix the legal ratio.

But Bryan's principle is the very reverse of his. In the article referred to above he says: "The United States can, by the restoration of free and unlimited coinage, lift the commercial ratio up to the legal ratio."

Jefferson acknowledged that values were regulated by the supply and demand in the markets; Bryan's delusion consists in believing that to arbitrarily announce a legal value will regulate a commercial value. Thus Jefferson and Bryan are at opposite poles

Jefferson's idea was that the use of metal money was contingent on the values placed on it by the countries with whom the United States transacts business. Bryan says that the United States does not have to consider what other nations think about our financial policy. If they don't like our money in finance.

they need not do business with us. But so peculiar is the working of Mr. Bryan's mind that he can not see how antagonistic to his theory his own acknowledgment is when he says in regard to the principle adopted by Jefferson in investigating the European commercial ratio between silver and gold and recommending a system of coinage accordingly: "For the United States to have established a ratio appreciably different from those that existed would have added a new and disturbing element."

Now this is just what the Republican party claims: TO ESTABLISH A RA-TIO, not merely appreciably, but radically DIFFERENT FROM THE COMMERCIAL RATIO WOULD ADD NEW AND DISTURBING ELE-MENTS.

This is what would be the case if we arbitrarily authorized the obsolete ration of 16 to 1 in the face of the fact that the commercial ratio is nearer 40

The Republican fundamental monetary principles are in accord with Jefferson's well known views.

Thomas Jefferson believed and the Republican party believes that "the proportion between the values of gold and silver is a mercantile problem altogether;" that just principles will lead us to disregard legal proportions altogether; to inquire into the market price of gold in the several countries with which we shall principally be connected in commerce, and to take an average from them."

If Bryan agreed with Jefferson, he would agree with the Republican party. As it is, he is simply laboring for political purposes in general, and mercantile reasons in particular, to MAKE THE SILVER MINE OWNERS FAB-ULOUSLY RICH BY TRYING TO LIFT THE COMMERCIAL RATIO UP TO THE RATIO OF 16 TO 1.

He is right, however, in saying that there is a renaissance of Jeffersonian principles, but that renaissance is under the banner of the Republican party and with William McKinley, not Bryan, as its chief apostle.

WOOD FLOUR IN DYNAMITE

Its Use In Germany as a Substitute For Infusorial Earth.

The state department at Washington some time ago instructed several consuls to report in regard to the use of wood flour in the manufacture of explosives, says the New York Sun. Consul General Mason writes from Berlin as follows:

"There is no manufacture of dynamite in Berlin, but from the representative of a firm in Saxony it has been ascertained that wood flour has been used in the manufacture of dynamite as a cheap substitute for infusorial earth, which is the standard material for that purpose. The entire German supply of infusorial earth comes from one source at Luneberg, between Hamburg and Hanover, and when that material became scarce and expensive by reason of increased demand experiments were made with wood flour as a substitute. From the best information that can be obtained it is regarded as distinctly inferior to infusorial earth for making explosives and is only used when extreme cheapness of product is desirable or the infusorial earth cannot be obtained.

"Wood flour has also been somewhat extensively used in the manufacture of linoleum, a kind of floor cloth made by laying a coating of hardened linseed oil mixed with ground cork on a canvas net or backing, but here again it was found to be hard, inelastic, and for that reason inferior to cork meal, so that its use has been, so far as can be ascertained, abandoned by most German makers of linoleum. If used at all for this purpose, it is done secretly and would be regarded as an adulters.

"The third and by far the most important use of wood flour in Germany is for the manufacture of papyrolite or Tylotite, a kind of artificial flooring. which is extensively produced by several large firms and companies in Ger-

FEMALE MAIL

That sounds more contradictory than it is, when attention is called to its being a description of the largest mail received by any man in the United States exclusively from women. This "female mail" is received by Dr. R. V. Pierce, the celebrated specialist in women's diseases, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

It is only fair to say that it is not the man that women write to, but the doctor. One of the remarkable features of this correspondence is that years after a cure has been effected, grateful women continue to write to Dr. Pierce, being thankful for health and for the kind and fatherly advice, which was blended with the physician's counsel, and which was so helpful in preserving the health when regained.

The offer of a free consultation by letter is extended by Dr. Pierce to every sick and ailing woman. Every letter received is read in private, answered in private and its contents treated as a sacred confidence. To exclude any third party from the correspondence, all answers are mailed in a plain envelope, bearing upon it no printing or advertising Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, whatever. Address Dr. R. V. # A GHOUL.

The fellow who maligns our gallant comrades, men who have given their lives for their country, is a ghoul in human form, a coward, poltroon and skulker, unfit for human companionship and deserving of supreme contempt and abhorrence. Webster's unabridged fails to furnish language sufficient to express our loathing for the miserable creature who signs himself "Editor of the Buckeye State."

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

It has been a long time since the Democratic press had so little to say against the personality of the Republican state ticket as this year. The fact is they can say nothing because there is nothing to say. Every man on the ticket is of unimpeachable character, politically and personally. From Geo. K. Nash, to the last name on the ticket, the Republican candidates, are worthy the hearty support of every Republican for their personal merit aside from the fact that they represent the principles of the Republican party and stand for endorsement of the policy and record of a Republican administration.

BAD OFFICIALS.

Evil men in office will cater to evil, and by their life and actions are a power for evil, impregnating the community in which they live and move with influences which almost insensibly and unwittingly degrade and debase individuals and lower the tone of public life. If you love your city, and aim for its prosperity and advancement, don't vote for a man who is known to be vile and unprincipled.

A HELL HOLE.

The so called "best" of the saloons in this city are HELL HOLES, miserable traps for the debasement of men's bodies and the destruction of their immortal part, or banishment to a place of unceasing torment. On labor day, one of these so-called "best" saloons sent from its inner circle a young man, reeling and cursing, acting like a maniac, and the next moment sent forth a gray haired man, his locks whitening for the grave, the miserable creature staggering down the street, a laughing stock for foolish women and children. The proprietor of this same devil's den has been known, time and again, to sell intoxicating drinks, on orders from parents or guardians, to little children, girls and boys, and the latter have been seen stop and drink the awful stuff from the mouth of the pitcher in which the vile concoction was contained. Surely the proprietor of this "BEST" hell hole is robbing the cradle and the grave. God's bitter curse will rest against such conduct and such a so-called business, and against a government whose people will continue to permit such nefarious practices. It is high time that lovers of God and humanity shall awake to the full knowledge of the enormity of the crime which is being committed, under the guise of legality, by the American take. Rodney Dickey, a neighbor, was saloon.

TWO HORSES STOLEN

One of Them Belonged to T. B. Murphy

WHO SENT IT OUT TO PASTURE

The Other Was a Colt Belonging to Ab. Waggle, and the Horses Were Taken From a Field on His Farm Near Ohio-

Several weeks ago T. B. Murphy sent his horse to the farm of Ab. Waggle, near Ohioville, for a much needed rest, as the animal was considerably run down and was a little lame.

The horse was turned out to pasture with a 15-months-old colt, owned by Mr. Waggle. Yesterday morning when Mr Waggle went to the field he discovered that both horses were missing. A careful search was made of the surrounding country and then the conclusion was reached that the horses had been stolen during the night. The police in all the cities up and down the river were notified to keep a lookout for the thieves, but the horses have not been recovered and there is no trace of them. It is thought the thieves headed this way.

The Murphy horse is a dark bay, with black mane and tail, is a little lame in the left hind foot and hip, and weighs about 1.100. The Waggle colt is about 15 months old and is a bay. A reward will be offered for the apprehension of the thief and the recovery of the horses.

A Mortgaged Bride.

When a Chinaman falls in love, he can be just as sharp and full of guile as the "Melican man." Chow Sam Lung, therefore, when he looked upon little Ah Moy and saw that she was beautiful and young, at once fell down and worshiped, figuratively speaking, and began to investigate as to his chances of making her his wife.

Now, Chow Sam Lung was young himself and a very successful gambler by profession, being the keeper of a gambling house in San Francisco. But the cruel parents of Ah Moy had promised her to old man Low How for his fourth wife and would not retract their promise. Did Chow Sam Lung sit down and bewait his lot? Not at all. He at once made her father's acquaintance, and, beguiling him into his gambling place, proceeded to let him play and win. Then he played and lost. And Chow Sam Lung said: "No matter, you are my friend. I will trust you."

After awhile the old man owed Chow Sam Lung $1,400. Now, old man Low How was to give Ah Moy's father $1,000 on her wedding day, but when New Year's came, and every Chinaman must pay his debts before he can paste his prayer in the josshouse, Ah Moy's dad was short and failed to raise the $1,400. So Chow Sam Lung, who had previously taken a mortgage -Harry Jenkins and wife are visiting on the girl, promptly foreclosed ft and friends in Cumberland for several took her to his home in the very face of old man Low How. THE JUSTICE OF THE SYSTEM.

Nearly $16,000,000 to Be Paid Pensioners by the Columbus Agency In September - Benefits Are Farreaching Iu Business Circles as Well as Among the Veterans.

Just now when the working force at the Columbus pension agency is bending all its energies to the competition of the rolls for the September payment, it is worth while considering what these payments mean. The Ohio Soldier, of Chillicothe, a leading organ of the old soldiers, presents these interesting facts:

Number of soldier pensioners of war for the union who draw pensions at the Columbus Agency .....

Amount paid .....$12,474,158.86 Number of widows..... 22,194 Amount paid.....$ 2,710,794.68 Number of pensioners of other wars..... Amount paid ..... 409.283.15 Total amount paid.....$15,597,215.64 At first glance the number of pensioners may appear large to those who do not take into consideration the army it represents. The war for the union was the greatest contest of and Ohio's enlistments in the war were in round numbers one-third of a mil lion of men.

An examination of these figures show that the average annual payment to pensioners of the war for the union is $149.57, and they fare some of Washington, D. C. better than the pensioners of some other wars, whose average is $119.60. This is as it should be, when the extent of the several wars are considered; and the average, as well as the sum total of payments, mark the fact that congress and the people purpose to treat the old soldier generously.

Is there a fair allotment of pensions under rulings of the pension department in each individual case? That is a question in which both the public and the soldiers are interested. Of course it would take more than human wisdom in so large a mass to deal out equal and exact justice to each individual, but we will venture to say that conducted so closely along the lines court where it is necessary to estabthe matters of which soldiers complain, and they do unquestionably work a hardship in many cases, deserving cases being rejected because the parties are unable to establish their claims by sufficient evidence. This is unfortunate, of course, to the unlucky individual, but it does not arise from the desire of the government to be illiberal. unjust or penurious. Such unfortunate exceptions follow all human affairs. Men go out of our civil courts every day without justice because they are unable to establish things which they know to be facts, by testimony; and just so criminals are discharged bely connect them with the crime.

cause the testimony does not sufficient-As to the policy of paying pensions, that would seem to be long since fixed by the practice of all civilized nations. From the organization of the government it has prevailed in this country. In the early days, when the young nation had no money to even pay its pressing debts, lands were given in lieu. We have a striking example of this beneficence here in Ohio where all that now rich and populous section lying between the Scioto and Miami rivers was given to the Virginia soldiers of the revolutionary war. This allotment not proving sufficient, a second and third allotment was made in Indiana and Illinois. East of the Scioto is another tract of 5,000 square miles, known as United States military lands, which was given to other revolutionary soldiers; and to the southeast is another tract known as the Ohio Company's Purchase, which was in a large. measure a grant to revolutionary soldiers. The land warrants to the soldiers of 1812 and the Mexican and Indian wars are familiar to our readers.

Referring again to the table, it shows the payment of pensions at the Columbus agency amounts to nearly a million and a third dollars per month. This is a large sum of money, but the good that flows from its quarterly distribution is manifold. First in point of importance is the substantial aid and comfort given in their old age to the soldiers who gave of their own life and strength that the nation might live—that government by the people might not perish from the face of the earth. This money is not hoarded; indeed it has more frequently been anticipated to meet the necessities of life, and goes at once to the grocer, the butcher, the clothier, the merchant. and to pay rent. In turn these people pass it to the wholesaler and manufacturer, or to settle other indebtedness. Pension day is a date that is looked forward to by the small dealers with as much interest as it is by the pensioner himself. The stream commences at the most remote cross-roads grocery and flows with ever increasing volume to the larger centers of trade.

Of all the taxes paid to the national treasury, scarcely a perceptible part. other than the pensions, reaches the greater interior of the country. The other expenses of the government are in the great money centres, to large contractors-for customs houses, postoffices, for improvement of harbors, for navy yards, for ships of war, great guns and little ones, ammunition, etc. Yet there are cross-roads politicians, who sit on store boxes, whittling away in blissful ignorance, whose patriotism never rises above selfishness, condemning the whole pension system and crying out about frauds and taxes.

"A DISASTROUS

NOMINATION" The Democratic Cleveland Plain Dealer Bolts McLean and Roasts His

Nomination. The Cleveland Plain Dealer of Aug. 31, 1899, the leading Democratic organ of Northern Ohio, says of the

The disgrace is consummated. A convention professing to be Democratic has inflicted on the Democratic party of Ohio a candidate who has no claims whatever to Democratic support; who which there is any authentic history, is not loyal to Democratic principles or organization; who has only pretended to act with the party for his own selfish ends and to the damage of the party he professes to affiliate with; who for fourteen years has been absent from the state and a resident

> It is not a Democratic nomination in any way, shape or manner. It has no claim to the support of Democrats who are true to the principles and organizations of their party in Ohio.

> The candidate represents nothing but his own selfish interests, and those interests are antagonistic to Democratic welfare. No Democrat who refuses to vote for him can be justly accused of bolting a Democratic nomination, for the nominee is not entitled to consideration as a Democrat.

John R. McLean at the head of the ticket nominated at Zanesville yesterday represents himself only. Behind him are not the Democracy of Ohio, there is no business in the country but his paid henchmen. His nomination was not the triumph of Demolaid down by the written rules, and no cratic principles, but of the barrel and the boss. The greatest calamity that lish a claim by such a preponderance | could befall the Democracy of Ohio of evidence. These rules and this would be his election. That, however, great preponderance of evidence are fortunately is an impossibility. Despite boodling and bossing, he will be the worst beaten candidate that has run for office in the state since the civil war.

He knows he is foredoomed to defeat. The men who secured his nomination know it. He and they know that his campaign will be disastrous to Democratic hopes this year and next in Ohio. That is of little consequence to him, compared with the effect the nomination may have in furthering the ulterior schemes of the nominee. The total wreck of the Democratic state and local ticket in Ohio this year and the discouraging effect it will have on the greater struggle next year count for nothing if McLean can force himself on the party as a nominal Democrat and use his present position as a stepping stone to higher positions hereafter.

There is no mystery about the manner in which the nomination was procured. The means are too gross for concealment, if there had been any attempt to conceal them.

Does anyone imagine that, on his claims as a Democrat, or as a citizen of Ohio, or as a man, this alien from the state for fourteen years would have been nominated for governor of Ohio?

Would there have been a dozen delegates in the convention to vote for him had he been a man in but moderate financial circumstances, with no other claims to consideration than those he now has aside from his wealth and readiness to spend it to accomplish his ends? The question answers

The other candidates on the ticket nominated yesterday are to be commiserated on their ill fortune. Like 'poor dog Tray," they are in bad company and will inevitably suffer the consequences. The tens of thousands who will refuse to vote for the head of the ticket, preferring to stay at home and lose their votes, might, with a different head to the ticket, have secured the success of the entire Democratic list of candidates. That is now out of the question. They may prepare themselves for loss through the disgusted stay-at-home vote, and for slaughter at the polls by treachery and trading.

Preserved Soap Bubbles.

If one wishes to make soap bubbles which will last several days, prepare the following mixture in a room where the temperature is not lower than 65 degrees: Dissolve at a gentle heat one part of castile soap, previously cut into thin shavings, in 40 parts of water, distilled, if possible, and, when the solution is cold, filter it.

Having done this carefully, mix in a bottle by violent and persistent shaking, a little at a time, two parts of glycerin with three parts of the above mentioned solution of soap and allow it then to stand where it will not be in the way of dust. The liquid, which is at first clear, soon becomes turbid. After a few days a white precipitate will have risen to the top of the liquid, leaving the remainder clear. Draw off the clear portion with siphon (a bent tube) and keep it for use. To use a siphon it is necessary first to fill it and then to plunge the shorter arm into the liquid to be drawn off.

This mixture is called glycerin liquid. The film it forms is of such strength that a bubble four inches in diameter may be kept in the open air of a room for three hours if supported by a ring Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent of iron or bone an inch and a half in diameter or allowed to rest on some noft woolen fabric. If placed under a glass shade, it may last as long as three days. If filled with tobacco smoke, it looks very much as if it were solid.-Boston Transcript.

Two Big Necks.

"Once, when I was in New York some years ago," said A. W. Whelpley, "I found myself one afternoon standing before a counter in one of that city's largest dry goods houses selecting some collars.

"A good many men sallied up while I was there and ordered collars of various sizes, from 13 to 18.

"I heard a full, rather hoarse voice, ask for 'turn down, 20.'

"I turned to note the man with the thick neck and beheld Grover Cleveiand beside me. I knew him by his resemblance to the fellow on the cigar boxes.

"I had been given my change and a small packet of wares by the auburn haired goddess of the counter, and with one more glance at the generous proportions of the man of destiny I was moving away when, strangely enough, the autocrat of the house of congress, Tom Reed, came steaming up to the

"There they stood, neither evidently knowing the proximity of the other.

"And bless me if he didn't ask for collars, 'second medium, welt band, turned front, 21!'

"I wondered if he thought the store provided a surveyor for such monstrous measures, but the goddess was equal to the occasion and handed out the desired size."-Cincinnati Enquirer.

Why Cannibals Eat Men.

Some grewsome information been collected by a member of the European medical fraternity in relation to tribes that eat men. A Frenchman figures that 20 per cent of all cannibals eat the dead in order to glorify them; 19 per cent eat great warriors in order that they may inherit their courage and eat dead children in order to renew their youth; 10 per cent partake of their near relatives from religious motives, either in connection with initiatory rites or to glorify deities, and 5 per cent feast in order to avenge themselves upon their enemies. Those who devour human flesh because of famine are reckoned as 18 per cent.

In short, deducting all these there remains only a portion of 24 per cent ho partake of human flesh because they prefer it to other means of alimentation.

In the heart of Africa man eating is continued to this day, and to such an extent that in certain villages ribs and quarters of man meat can be bought. It is easier for the native there to kill men when they desire flesh than to go to the exertion of hunting game.-St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Man of Nerve.

The most curious feature in the case of a miner imprisoned for nearly 70 hours in the Gaylord coal mine at Plymouth, Pa., was his peacefully falling asleep in his tomb as soon as he realized that he was likely to be rescued. It would be difficult to imagine a more serene nervous system. There were plenty of chances, too, that the miners might not get the poor fellow out alive. When finally he did emerge, he behaved himself as a hero ought to behave-quietly, with less thought of himself than of his distracted mother, who at the moment was at home praying for him.-Collier's Weekly.

Elequent Tribute to Returned Pennsylvania Troops.

TAGALS WERE THE AGGRESSORS.

Gallant Patriotism of the American Troops and the Philippine Roll of Honor - He Leaves the "Ungracious Task of Justification and Eulogy" of Aguinaldo to the Democrats.

President McKinley's speech at Pittsburg on Monday, Aug. 28, on the occasion of the reception tendered the Tenth Pennsylvania regiment on its return from the Philippines was one of the finest examples of patriotic eloquence which has been heard in many months, as well as one of the best reviews of the war in the Philippines that has yet been presented to the American people. It should be read by every American citizen. The speech in full is as follows:

Governor Stone and my fellow-citizens: I am glad to participate with the families, friends and fellow-citizens of the Tenth Pennsylvania volunteers in this glad reunion.

You have earned the plaudits, not alone of the people of Pennsylvania, but of the whole nation. Your return has been the signal for a great demonstration of popular regard. From your landing at the Golden Gate in the Pacific to your home-coming here you find a warmth of welcome and a greeting of joyous hearts, which tell better than words the estimate of your countrymen, and their high appreciation of the services you have rendered the country. You made secure and permanent the victory of Dewey. added new glory to American arms. You and your brave comrades engaged on other fields have enlarged the map of the United States and extended the jurisdiction of American liberty.

A Glorious Record.

But while we share in the joy that is yours, there remain with us softened and hallowed memories of those who went forth with you, not found in your ranks today. Your noble colonel, devoted to his men, beloved by his command and respected by his superior officers, gave his life to his country, with many others of his comrades. The nation sorrows with the bereaved. These heroes died for their country, and there is no nobler death. These troops represented the courage and conscience, the purpose and patriotism of their country. Whether in Cuba, Porto Rico, or the Philippines, or at home awaiting orders, they did their full duty, and all sought the post of greatest peril. They never faltered. The Eighth army corps in the Philippines have made a proud and exceptional record. Privileged to be mustered out in April, when the ratifications of the treaty of peace were exchanged, they did not claim the privilege—they declined it. They voluntarily remained in the service and declared their purpose to stay until their places could be filled by new levies, and longer if the government needed them. Their service-and they understood it-was not to be in camp or garrison, free from danger, but on the battle line, where exposure and death confronted them, and where both have exacted their victims.

Did Not Stack Arms.

They did not stack arms. They did not run away. They were not serving the insurgents in the Philippines, or their sympathizers at home. They had no part or patience with the men, few in number happily, who would have rejoiced to have seen them lay down their arms in the presence of an enemy whom they had just emancipated from Spanish rule, and who should have been their firmest friends. They furnished an example of devo-tion and sacrifice which will brighten the glorious record of American valor. They have secured not alone the gratitude of the government and the people, but for themselves and their descendants an imperishable distinction. They may not fully appreciate, and the country may not, the heroism of their conduct and its important sup-port to the government. I think I do, and so I am here to express it. The mighty army of volunteers and over 250,000, regulars, numbering which last year responded to the call of the government with an alacrity without precedent or parallel, by the terms of their enlistment were to be mustered out with all of the regulars above 27,000 when peace was affected. Peace brought us the Philippines by treaty cession from Spain. The senate of the United States ratified the treaty. Every step taken was in obedience to the requirements of the constitution. It became our territory, and is ours as much as the Louisiana purchase, or Texas or Alaska. A body of insurgents, in no sense representing the sentiment of the people of the islands, disputed our lawful authority, and even before the ratification of the treaty by the American senate were attacking the very forces who fought for and secured their freedom. .

Loyalty of Volunteers.

This was the situation in April, 1899, the date of the exchange of ratifications-with only 27,000 regulars sublect to the unquestioned direction of the executive, and they for the most part on duty in Cuba or Porto Rico, or invalided at home after their severe Even had campaign in the trepics. they been available it would have required months to transport them to Practically a new the Philippines. army had to be created. These loyal volunteers in the Philippines said: "We will stay until the government can organize an army at home and transport it to the seat of hostilities. They did stay, cheerfully, uncomplainingly, patriotically. They suffered and sacrificed; they fought and fell; script copy of the Bible they drove back and punished the to finish it in two years.

Who refused to sound the retreat? Who stood in the breach when others weakened? Who resisted the suggestion of the unpatriotic that they should come home? Let me call the roll of the regiments and battalions that deserve to be perpetuated in the nation's annals. Their action was not a sudden impulse under excitement, but a deliberate determination to sustain, at the cost of life, if need be, the honor of their government, and the authority of its flag:

To these must be added about 4,000 enlisted men of the regular army, who were entitled to their discharge under the peace proclamation of April 11, 1899; the greater portion of whom participated in the engagements of the Eighth corps, and are still performing arduous duties in the field.

Nor must the navy be forgotten. Sixty-five devoted sailors participated in the engagement of May 1 in Manilla bay, whose terms of service had previously expired, continuing on duty quite a year after that action, we have only honor and gratitude. The world will never know the restraint of our soldiers-their self-control under the most exasperating conditions. Until the treaty was ratified we had no authority beyond Manilla city, bay and harbor. We then had no other title to defend, no authority beyond that to maintain. My prayers go with them and more men and munitions, if required, for the speedy suppression of the rebellion, the establishment of peace and tranquillity and a government under the undisputed sovereignty of the United States-a government which will do justice to all and at once encourage the best efforts and aspirations of these distant people, and the highest development of their rich and fertile lands.

GOV. STONE'S MELON.

Missouri's Former Executive Shows How to Serve One.

In a Pine Street Restaurant In St. Louis the Other Day He Showed Some Friends How It Should Be Done - Three Watermelons Were

Ex-Governor William Joel Stone put aside his cares and burdens as a national Democratic committeeman the other day in St. Louis and became for a few minutes plain Bill Stone and ate watermelons as he used to do on the farm. The governor had met two friends on the street. One of them suggested something refreshing in the way of summer drinks. The governor declined. He did not at that moment fancy lemonade, soda water or any of the ordinary summer mixtures.

"I am thirsty, though, boys," he added. "I'm thirsty for a watermelon. There's nothing so good on a hot August afternoon as a rich, red, juicy watermelon." "Well, by all means let's have some watermelon," said the man who had first brought up the proposition. "Come on, governor." The three gentlemen walked slowly over to Pine street, the governor sharpening his appetite for watermelon on the way by calling up recollections of the time when, as a barefooted boy, he was the champion melon consumer of two states, says the St. Louis Republic. They entered one of the small coffee and sinkers restaurants where signs on the wall announce that the coffee is like that mother used to make, and where the pies are sold "per cut." Seating themselves on stools at an uncovered counter, the party ordered watermelon for three. The fruit, ice cold and as red as blood, was produced, symmetrically cut into wedges, each section placed on a plate and accompanied by knife and fork.

Governor Stone gave the layout one lingering look of scorn. "Take it away, sir," he ordered. "Don't you know how to serve watermelon? The idea-bringing little slices in here that I wouldn't offer an infant. Take it all back and bring me a melon, a whole one, the roundest, greenest one in your icebox," The restaurant man was flustered, but he obeyed orders. He brought back a melon which even the fastidious ex-governor could not find fault with.

"Boys," said the governor, "this is the only way to eat a melon. First, you see, I give it a thump to see if it's ripe. This one gives back a deep, melodious p-l-u-n-k as I thump it, and I know it's ripe. Then you take it-I do wish I had a stump here to smash it on instead of this counter-and you bust 'er like this''-

The governor lifted the melon up and brought it down with a crash. It was a masterful "bust." The melon fell apart in irregular pieces, slender spars of the red pulp jutting out from the rind like stalactites from the roof of a cavern.

"Now, boys, pitch in," said the governor, picking up a piece of the "heart," which had no rind at all to bother him. "No knives and forks are needed here. Don't swallow the pulp, though, fellows. That stuff's wood. I used to eat it and think it the best part of the melon, but I have found it to be most indigestible."

The melon was paid for by the man who had offered to buy the drinks. Then the second one in the party ordered a fresh melon, which the governor artistically "busted." When it was eaten, a suggestion was made that, every one having had enough, the party should break up. The governor objected.

"If we had taken juleps," he said, "the pernicious custom of treating would have demanded that every man buy a round of drinks. Each of you have bought, and, as the melon is only a substitute for the drinks, I think it is my turn, gentlemen, to set em up. Landlord, bring us another round of melon."

The third melon was "busted" and eaten like the other two. As the governor and his friends walked out on the street the restaurant man called all the help from his kitchen and was overheard to say: "Bring out your mops and clean up this mess. An old sport they called 'Governor' has been drippin melons all over the place. I wonder who on earth he is."

Revival of Croquet.

Signs of a revival of croquet have not been wanting for some months. The decision to change the name of the scientific game to "roque" may aid in bringing it about, says the Chicago Tribune. Croquet has had several periods of popularity. The first was in the latter part of the eighteenth century, but the height of its success was from 1860 to 1870, when it was the great summer social game. Lawn tennis was its successor in popular favor. and now golf is the society outdoor game. There are two old men, by the way, who for years have played croquet in Garfield park, in Chicago, every afternoon the weather permits.

FOURTH OF JULY AT PARIS.

Some Features Planned For Independence Day at the Exposition.

Arrangements are being made by the United States commission to the Paris exposition for a surprise to the world. The French government has already set aside July 4, 1900, as Independence day for the United States. Commissioner General Peck, in accordance with the honor shown the country, is arranging to show Paris how much American patriotism can be crowded into one day, says the Chicago Record. While no definite plans have been made, Mr. Peck and F. J. V Skiff of the commission are determined that the celebration will be of such a nature that Parisians and people from other parts of the world who happen to be there at the time will not have any trouble in remembering it when other big features of the fair shall be forgotten.

There will be American oratory, that is certain, and, while the speakers have not been selected, it is known that the honor of addressing the nations of the world will fall to distinguished sons of America. About fireworks the commission is puzzled. A Fourth of July in the United States would be as dead as a lawn social without fireworks, but the members of the commission fear that the French government will object to the noisy cannon cracker and the skyrocket with its tail of fire. An effort will be made, however, to smuggle a generous amount of firecrackers into the show. One feature of the day as at present planned is a monster parade, not only in the exposition grounds, but all over Paris. This will be at night, probably, and will be gorgeously illuminated.

Every American in Paris will be requested to wear a United States flag, and the thousands of Americans resident in Paris will display the flag from their homes. All of the hotels will be draped in the national colors, and an effort will be made to have every American visitor see to it that on that day the flag floats from the house wherein he stops. Special excursions from America will be run, and every inducement will be made to make the attendance of Americans as large as possible. The American chamber of commerce in Paris is taking an interest in the proposed national celebration and will be in communication with the United States commission, making what suggestions it can. It will also raise a considerable fund to defray expenses which cannot be charged to any fund now at the disposal of the commission.

CORN IS KING IN KANSAS. Tall Stalks and Big Ears That Are Exhibited.

Corn is the universal topic in Kansas these days. Corn starts the conversation on the cars. Cornstalks are stacked up at the station doors to show the travelers what that particular locality has done, says the Topeka correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. In the office of the Atchison Globe is a collection of stalks with their butts on the floor. When Editor Howe stands on tiptoe, he can just reach the ears with the tips of his fingers. Nothing less than 14 feet is considered worthy of show. Out at Downs, half way across the state, the station agent has on exhibition stalks which tower above the depot roof. A local poet has been inspired to the following:

> The Kansas chinch bugs never die; Each season they appear, But cornstalks twenty-two feet high Have knocked them out this year.

The bugs they came—they came in vain; We'll live when they have flown; Give Kansas but her share of rain, And she will hold her own.

Some of the new crop is sufficiently advanced to justify weighing. One buyer, to illustrate the quality, is showing eight ears which tip the beam at two pounds each. Thirty-five such ears would weigh a bushel. In ordinary years corn from which 80 ears will weigh out a bushel is accounted good enough for Kansas.

McLean's Prospecis.

When the father of free silver, General A. J. Warner, was asked after the nomination, what prospects for success in the gubernatorial campaign John R. McLean had, he significantly and pithily answered:

"John R. McLean will run just as well as his money will let him."

That is to say, he will succeed only in proportion to the corruptibility of Ohio's Democracy. But every patriot is thankful that there is a vast difference between the conscienceless purchase of delegates to a convention and the corruptibility of the great mass of the people of Ohio.

The Ruin of Ohio Democracy.

The Toledo Bee, the leading Democratic organ of Northwestern Ohio, said editorially a few days before the convention at Zanesville:

Now we don't know exactly where we are at, no matter who may be our candidate. But this is certain, that if McLean controls the convention at Zanesville there will be such a revolt among the people against bossism that it will come pretty near ruining the Democratic party in Ohio. Any Democrat who believes that owes it to his party to sound the warning-and the editor of The Bee believes it.

What will Editor Cochran have to
